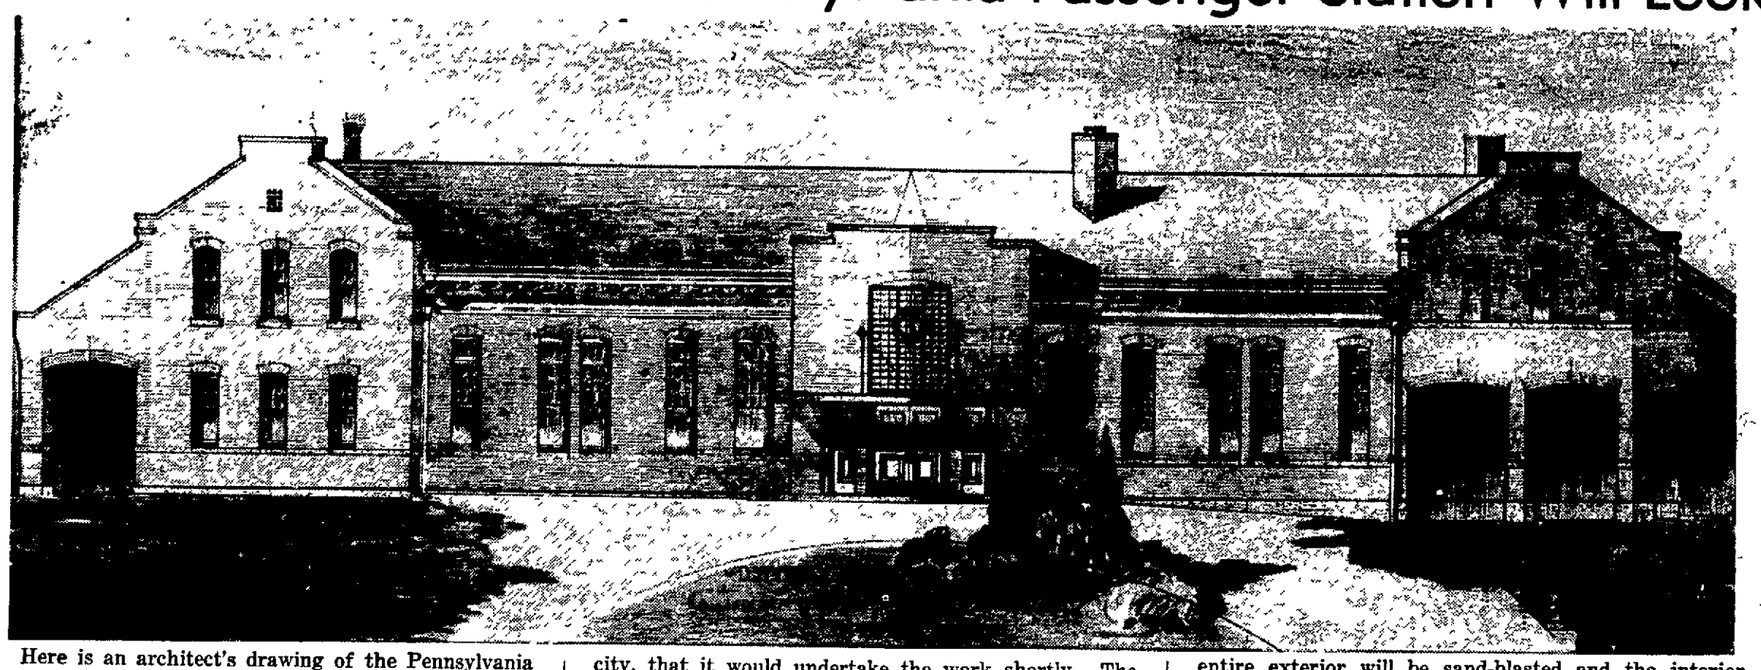
Here's How Modernized Pennsylvania Passenger Station Will Look



Here is an architect's drawing of the Pennsylvania passenger station in Mansfield as it will look after the railroad has spent $75,000 on modernizing it. The railroad announced today, as a Christmas present to the city, that it would undertake the work shortly. The drawing shows the approach from the city side of the station, with a new marquee-covered entrance in the center and an addition built at the northwest end. The entire exterior will be sand-blasted and the interior remodeled and renovated. On the train side, a subway, platform, shelter and waiting room will be built for the accommodation of passengers embarking on or disembarking from westbound trains.

Pennsy to Spend $75,000 on City Station

Discloses Depot Project As Gift

Improvements Including Construction of 100-Foot Shelter, Subway and New Waiting Room Revealed at Luncheon.

Mansfield got a surprise Christmas present today —a $75,000 remodeling and modernization program for the Pennsylvania railroad station.

The project was announced at noon today in an unusual Christmas manner, a luncheon aboard a special car in the Mansfield yards.

At the luncheon, General Superintendent R. C. Miller of Pittsburgh, presented to George L. Draffan a present. Draffan is chairman of the Chamber of Commerce transportation committee, which has had as its major goal improved passenger facilities in Mansfield.

The present was a picture—a large drawing in color, of the new station.

The present station building will be completely overhauled and enlarged, both inside and out.

In addition to the improvements to the building itself, a new subway will be constructed leading from the station to the westbound tracks. The subway will be six feet wide and 58 feet long, and will lead to a large well-lighted passenger platform, shelter and an enclosed waiting room. The platform will be 20 feet wide and 650 feet long and will have a surface of bituminous material.

The shelter will be 100 feet long. The heated waiting room will be 40 feet in length.

In addition to the passenger platform there will be a 125-foot platform for express and loading purposes.

All these details were announced today by Superintendent Miller, and described at length at the noon luncheon.

Work on the project will start, Miller said, as soon as engineering plans are completed and the contract awarded.

Extensive improvements to the station proper are planned. The Nazi Luxury Ship Sunk By Crew to Foil British

The Columbus, once proud queen of Germany's merchant fleet, today was a fire-ravaged hulk on the ocean floor, 400 miles off the coast of Virginia. She sank in a cloud of steam yesterday after she was foundered by her crew to escape a British warship. Today 579 crew members and officers were being taken to New York aboard an American cruiser where they face temporary internment if found to be bona-fide sailors and not combatants. The Columbus was making a desperate attempt to reach Europe after leaving Mexico several days ago.

Letter Says He Sought to Share Fate of His Ship

Body Found Shot In Buenos Aires Hotel Room; Note Declares He Postponed Act to Assure Self Crew Was Safe; Discovered By Naval Aide.

(By United Press)

BUENOS AIRES—Capt. Hans Langsdorff, commander of the scuttled German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee, shot and killed himself today. His body was found in a room in the Immigrants hotel.

A letter, it was learned, had been left by the skipper who killed himself with a revolver.

The captain's letter said that from the first moment he had decided to share the destiny of his ship.

There had been no intimation of Langsdorff's decision. Even after he had sent his $20,000,000 ship to the bottom of the Platte estuary Sunday night he had appeared debonaire and cheerful. Upon arriving in Buenos Aires he had said:

"I am happy that all of my men are safe."

In his letter Langsdorff said that although he had decided upon suicide from the first he decided to postpone the act long enough to assure the safety of more than 1,000 young men in his crew.

The body was discovered by one of Langsdorff's aides.

Since the Graf Spee was scuttled Sunday night Langsdorff has been criticized by the British and French who said that as long as the guns on his ship could fire he should have gone out fighting against the Allied warships maintaining a death watch for the Graf Spee at the mouth of the Platte.

Orders to scuttle the Graf Spee, it was understood, came from Fuehrer Adolf Hitler and there was great speculation as to why $20,000,000 worth of battleship was sent down rather than submit to internment or risk a fight against Allied warships in which it might have inflicted serious damage before being disabled itself.

Langsdorff was regarded by his colleagues as one of the ablest commanders in the German navy. He fought hard against the order of the Uruguayan government that the Graf Spee would have to be interned or leave Montevideo harbor Sunday night, insisting that he required more time to make his vessel seaworthy.

Officiated at Rites.

Amidst strenuous efforts to keep his ship uninterned in Montevideo as long as possible Langsdorff headed simple ceremonies at the North cemetery, Montevideo, where 36 men who died in the Graf Spee's battle with the British cruisers Ajax, Achilles and Exeter were buried.

Before his battle with the British ships last Wednesday Langsdorff had been at large as a sea raider. When the Graf Spee put into Montevideo it carried as prisoners the captains and parts of the crews of at least six British ships sent to the bottom by the pocket battleship before it encountered the British navy.

When discovered last Wednesday the Graf Spee was about to attack another merchant ship.

GIVES UP T. B. HOSPITAL PLAN

Commissioners and Advisory Board Decide Against Purchase.

County commissioners will not purchase the Eleanor Thomas sanitarium for a tuberculoses sanitarium, but will continue its present care and treatment program.

This was decided last night when the county commissioners and the county advisory board on the tuberculosis program met at the home of Dr. John S. Hattery. County Auditor Norman Wolfe was also at the meeting.

There had been some discussion of the advisability of purchasing the Eleanor Thomas hospital, on the southern outskirts of the city and converting it into a tuberculosis sanitarium.

It was agreed that for the pres-

Fugitive Says Conscience Wouldn't Let Him Enjoy Freedom.

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va.—(AP)—A conscience-stricken fugitive from a year and a day prison sentence appeared at the office of the prison warden here yesterday with the request that he be locked up.

The fugitive, Leonard Carter, 32, escaped after his conviction and sentence on a breaking and entering charge a month ago. He said, "My conscience has bothered me since, so I decided to give myself up."

NAZI SAILORS TAKEN TO U. S.

Crew of Foundered Ship on U. S. Cruiser After Sinking Boat to Foil British.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—After burning and adandoning their luxurious 32,000-ton ship at the approach of a British man-of-war, 579 crew members and officers of the German liner Columbus were being sped to Ellis Island today by an American cruiser.

The blazing derelict, onetime queen of the German merchant fleet, was left alone to sink beneath the Atlantic waves in a cloud of steam.

The Columbus, which failed in a desperate dash for Europe from Vera Cruz, Mexico, already was settling when the U. S. S. Tuscaloosa completed a dramatic rescue at dusk yesterday 400 miles east of Cape Henry, Va. Only two German sailors were known to have been lost.

The survivors, including nine women, were due in New York harbor today for examination by immigration officials. If found to be bona fide merchant seamen, they can remain at liberty in the United States for 60 days.

But if an inquiry should determine that they are navy men or that the liner was armed, tem-

TAKES REWARD

Finder of $1,000 In Lost Wallet Keeps $400 For Himself.

DENVER —(AP)— Major Herbert W. Hardman, quartermaster at Lowry Field, tucked his wallet into his sock while dancing at a night club.

The wallet, containing $1,000, dropped out. The major offered $100 reward.

The finder mailed the billfold to the major, but sent along only $600.

CORPSE HUNTED

Part of Young Girl's Body Found on Doorstep.

HOLDEN, Mass. —(INS)— Unleashed bloodhounds bayed through meadows and woodlands today as police sought the dismembered corpse of a young girl whose identity and circumstances of her death alike are shrouded in mystery.

First indication of what may turn out to be a murder case came in a report from a farm wife, Mrs. Harold Bateman, that a severed human leg lay outside her doorstep. She believed, she said, her dog brought the leg there. Some other portions of a human body were found nearby.

A police physician voiced belief the body, when and if found, will be that of a young girl, probably between 13 and 15 years old.

COUNCIL SKIPS NEW YEAR MEET

Sets Precedent by Decision to Hold Its Organization Meeting on Jan. 2.

Mansfield councilmen are going to have a complete New Year holiday again in 1940, unbroken by the Jan. 1 organization meeting that was a custom until this year.

Following a special meeting last night, final one this year, councilmen agreed to hold their organization session at 7 p. m., Jan. 2 and then conduct their first regular session of 1940 at 8 p. m. the same night.

The plan was proposed by C. N. Shultz, Second ward councilman, and endorsed by other members who said they wanted to enjoy all of New Year day without a council meeting in the afternoon.

With the new year, one new member will take his place in council and a new council president will take office.

The new councilman is Jacob L. Kutschall from the Fourth ward. He succeeds Lester D. Hunter who was defeated in the primary last August after holding the post for three consecutive terms. Both are Democrats.

Howard G. Miller, a Democrat, will be the new council president, succeeding George L. Berg, who

COUNTY GETS RELIEF TASK

City Council Switches Needy Aid to Commissioners, Jobs of Dems Probably Saved.

With the help of two Republicans that wasn't needed, city council last night wasted no time in handing the administration of relief back to the county commissioners and probably saving the jobs of five Democratic appointees in the relief office.

In a brief special meeting, council voted seven to one to shift the relief supervision to the county where it will continue under a Democratic administration.

The ordinance, which becomes effective Dec. 30, takes the relief administration out of the hands of Republican William J. Locke who will become mayor Jan. 1. Had the present set-up been retained, Locke could have replaced Relief Director J. V. Finney and four or five case investigators and stenographers appointed under a Democratic administration.

The only dissenting vote was cast by George Kyle, Third ward Republican. C. N. Shultz and Russell Porch, both Republicans, voted for the measure with the five Democratic councilmen. James E.

GIRL KIDNAPED

$2,000 Ransom Demanded for Return of Canton Pupil.

CANTON, O.—(INS)—Receipt of a ransom demand put Federal Bureau of Investigation agents on the trail today of missing Annie Hutchinson, 18-year-old high school senior.

The Hutchinson girl has been missing since Dec. 1 when her mother drove her to school. She is the stepdaughter of Charles Marshall, Republic Steel Corp., employe.

The ransom note was the third letter received by Mrs. Marshall since her daughter disappeared. The other two did not ask for money. Mrs. Marshall said they were not in her daughter's handwriting.

The ransom note read: "$2,000, receive instructions later—only purpose for this is revenge. Do not notify police."

Man Charged With Assaulting Two Children, Escapes Police.

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O. —(AP)— State highway patrolmen intensified their search today for James Hatfield, 31, who escaped after pleading innocent to assaulting two children at nearby Dover.

Hatfield, who was handcuffed, broke away from two patrol officers as they prepared to take him to Cambridge for further questioning. Several shots were fired after him.

Police Chief Emery Gunls said Hatfield had spent 14 of the last 16 years in penal institutions.

SOLDIERS: Finland Calls All Men of 40 to Fight Invaders

(By Associated Press)

HELSINKI—Finland called to the colors all able bodied men of 40 years of age today as military sources declared Russian troops had been thrown back close to their own frontier on the Karelian isthmus and Soviet bombers renewed raids on Finnish cities.

Blizzards and 25 degrees temperatures of below zero, fahrenheit, said dispatches from Kirenes, Norway, near the Finnish frontier, apparently have paralyzed a Russian drive in northern Finland. The Finns, hitherto retreating in this sector, were said to be preparing a new fortified line south of Lake Inari.

Today's mobilization order was the first going outside the normal classes of reservists.

(The call probably adds 20,000 to the Finnish forces, which were authoritatively estimated at 400,000 at the start of the war. Finnish reports have placed the strength of the opposing Red army forces as high as 1,500,000.)

Russian aerial activity increased for the second successive day. Alternating sunshine and protecting clouds aided the bombing planes.

Air raid alarms were sounded this morning in many cities of southern Finland, including Helsinki, where the alarm was sounded at 10:03 a. m. (3:03 a. m. Mansfield time) followed by the all clear signal 11 minutes later.

Four times during the day warnings sounded at Turku (ABO), which was bombed three times yesterday.

At Hanko, coastal fortress town on the southwestern coast, an air raid alarm lasted four hours. A refugee camp outside the town was reported hit.

A hundred Russian planes in formations of from three to 20 attacked Helsinki, Viipuri, Hanko, Turku and other areas yesterday.

PENALTIES: Americas Move to Put Teeth In Neutrality Rules

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Reliable diplomatic sources informed the United Press today that the United States, Brazil, and Argentine, have moved to provide penalties for violators of the neutrality zone established around the hemisphere at a Pan-American conference.

These sources said that Brazil had proposed, and that the United States and Argentina have approved, a proposed declaration by the 21 American nations that, hereafter, any belligerent warship which violates the principle of the safety zone will be accorded no assistance at American ports it would apply to damaged as well as non-damaged vessels.

In event a ship guilty of a violation sought refuge or repairs in an American port, it was said, it and its crew would be interned for the duration of the war.

The Argentine government is said to be drafting the proposal which will be submitted to the other American governments for their approval. Uruguay was said to be in accord with the proposal already.

This action, designed as an answer to violators of the safety zone set up at a Panama conference in October, was revealed as the European war was brought to the shores of the United States by the scuttling and burning of the German liner Columbus off the New Jersey coast to avoid capture by a British warship, and the flight of the German freighter Arauca to the port of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to escape the British cruiser Orion.

Kiddies Forget Crutches and Braces As Rotary Club's Santa Unpacks Toys

Crippled Children Dine, Put on Play at Annual Christmas Party.

(Pictures on Page 2)

By JANE WILLIAMS

THE Rotary club Christmas party for crippled children, given yesterday at the Mansfield-Leland hotel ballroom, is an annual event, and it is always a question as to who gets the biggest kick out of it—the children, the Rotarians, or "Uncle Bill" W. C. Mead, who plans it every year.

There were 19 guests of honor yesterday and they sat up very straight and proper at one long table that had a row of bright red candles down the center, and at each place were Christmas boxes of candy and candy canes.

All of the children were from the Sunshine school. With them were their teacher, Miss Eileen Fessenden, and Glenn Robinson, principal of West Fifth street school. The ballroom was decorated with spruce and fir and at one end was a big Christmas tree, alight with tinsel and things that glittered fascinatingly in the candle light.

At the end of the dinner and after the last spoonful of ice cream had been licked up, the children gave a play, and crutches and braces were forgotten as they enacted the story of "The Little Christmas Tree."

Bricker Says Relief Crisis Ended, CIO Asks F. D. R.'s Aid

DAYTON SEEKS ASSISTANCE IN FEEDING NEEDY

Toledo Group Says 'Actual Starvation' Exists; New Resources Cited.

"The acute problems of Ohio relief are now solved for this year."

"There is actual starvation in Ohio. . . . The greeting 'Merry Christmas' will be a hollow mockery for thousands."

These two statements, the first by Gov. John W. Bricker in a radio address from Cincinnati, the second by the Industrial Union Council of Toledo in a message to President Roosevelt, stood against each other today as Ohio awaited the Christmas holidays.

Meanwhile another city, Dayton, joined the list of those asking for financial help from the state for relief purposes. The governor, in a conference there yesterday, urged issuance of $227,000 in bonds against delinquent taxes to finance relief, but City Finance Director Earl E. Hagerman replied the "cream" of delinquent taxes had been collected and the remainder was a "dead horse."

In his statewide broadcast last night, Governor Bricker added to his statement that the acute relief problems were solved for 1939:

"Next year will bring new problems with new resources. We want no one in Ohio hungry or in need of the necessities of life. We are equally determined that the needy shall be helped and that the employable shall be employed.

"We are encouraged because of improving conditions. Christmas buying is fine, employment is up. The state unemployment department has secured jobs for twice as many as last year. Ohio's crops have been generally good. These blessings have been widespread and everyone will benefit. At this Christmas time the spirit of charity and good will ought to prevail."

Contradict Bricker.

Almost while he was speaking the Toledo labor group, central body of the Congress of Industrial Organizations there, released its letter to President Roosevelt.

"Contrary to the statements of Governor Bricker," it said, "there is actual starvation in Ohio and our appeals for relief for these people are falling on deaf ears. . . . We are again appealing to you to impress upon the responsible people the necessity for adequate relief in Ohio and Toledo.

To help restore an estimated 1 000 cases to the relief rolls, Toledo's welfare director, Clarence Benedict, added six relief investigators to his staff.

Boy Takes Apple To Hospital When Told Santa's Ill

(By International News Service)

BOSTON — By profession a singer, Mrs. Nina Flynn found herself jobless at Christmastide. There are three children in the Flynn household, so the mother decided a bit of fibbing was a practical necessity.

"Santa Claus," she told them, "is ill this year. He's in the hospital."

Five-year-old Ronald Flynn grew thoughtful as he listened. It is tough to be ill at Christmas time—tougher, even, than to have mother not working and no money coming in.

Mrs. Flynn's harmless fib had its sequel today in an incident that would have gladdened the heart of Charles Dickens.

Up the steps of City hospital, into the corridors with their clean, sterile odor of antiseptic trudged chubby-cheeked Ronald this morning. In his hand was an apple which he shined furtively on his coat sleeve.

"Mamma said Santa was sick," he told the receptionist. "So, I brought him an apple," wistfully, Ronald added:

"I do hope he gets well by Christmas."

So do all other little boys and girls.

Up and Down THE STREET

Friends of Mike Horvath will probably be surprised to learn that the captain of the late Mansfield high grid team is quite a singer. The usually shy Horvath, who is a member of the central Ohio all-star football team, which plays in St. Petersburg, Fla., Christmas night, has developed into a full-fledged bass since leaving Mansfield last week. The players, who will arrive in St. Pete by bus today, need only a tenor for a first-class quartet, it was announced yesterday in the Columbus Citizen, a sponsor of the high school team. John Pfahler of Mansfield is also a member of the squad.

Glenn Pore, Mansfield letter carrier and scoutmaster of Boy Scout troop No. 5 at Hedges school, should be well supplied with knives for a long, long time. He received three of them from members of his troop as Christmas presents at a troop party last night. First given a knife to open the package the scouts had presented him, he found a regulation Boy Scout knife and a hunting knife inside the package.

Mrs. Peter Stupanski, 67 Johns avenue, is among those who believe in Santa Claus—or at least the spirit of the old saint. She was Christmas shopping in the Reliable furiture store Monday and dropped a pocketbood containing $46.50. She didn't miss it, however, and when she arrived home she found she was being "paged" by Lewis Arenson, one of the proprietors, who had found the purse right after she left. She hadn't known about her loss and consequently hadn't worried—but she has made up for it by worrying ever since.

Maybe it is pre-natal influence, but anyway Police Chief Meade K. Bates is getting a dose of his own "No Comment" treatment which he so frequently hands out to news men. The chief's small son, Tommy, 5, came home from play the other day with an injured hand and a broken shoulder, but so far he has adapted his father's "No Comment" attitude and simply refuses to tell his father and mother where or how he was injured. When they question him—and the chief has used his best FBI methods of questioning—he either closes up like a clam or says "Won't tell." The chief admits he's beginning to see where the "No Comment" attitude can be pretty aggravating.

SEEKS PERMIT

City Wants Class A License for Sewage Engineer.

A request that the city be permitted to dispense with the services of a technical supervisor at the sewage disposal plant and that a temporary class A license be issued to James Turner, operator of the plant, was forwarded today to the state health department.

Service-Safety Director Earl Nist filed a formal request today with Dr. R. H. Markwith, state director of health, that a temporary A license be granted Turner, who holds only a Class B license at present.

For the past two years the city has paid for the services of James R. Collier, Elyria, in the capacity of technical supervisor of the sewage plant. His salary was formerly $150 per month but this year dropped to $60 for the first six months and $50 for the last six months.

His services can be dispensed with only if a Class A operator is in charge of the plant, Nist said.

GRAIN TRADE'S BOUNCING AGAIN

Recent Activity Brings One of Merriest Christmas Seasons in Many Years.

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO — White figures chalked on the Board of Trade's blackboards and denoting the prices of things farmers have to sell explained today why the grain trade is enjoying one of the merriest Christmas seasons in years.

Those gleaming numerals told a story of almost unparalleled market action the last three weeks in the Chicago pits center of the world's grain business.

Millions of dollars have been added to the market value of important farm commodities. The best grain business in more than two years has cheered men who scarcely a month ago were discouraged by the poorest trade they have known in two decades.

Since the last days of November prices of wheat, rye, soy beans, corn and oats have staged one of the most spectacular advances in market history. Wheat has risen about 24 cents in three weeks, rye 26 cents and soy beans 29 cents. Dollar wheat is back on the blackboard and prices of all commodities except corn have been quoted this week at the highest levels in about two years.

Veteran traders cannot recall when the advance has ever been so swift. Certainly, there has been nothing like it in the grain market since the inflation trading of 1933, when wheat rose about 30 cents during July. A gain of about 40 cents in October, 1916, during the World war, was the only other occasion of such rapid advance in recent years.

Men have been put back to work on the Exchange floor and in commission houses.

TEXAS 'GUN-WOMAN' SORRY SHE FAILED TO 'PLUG' ERRANT MATE

(By United Press)

PITTSBURGH—An apology for her poor marksmanship today was Mrs. Martha (Ginger) Harrison's only comment on her wild effort to "plug" her husband and radio team partner, Tex Harrison, in a scuffle at county detectives' headquarters last night.

"Coming from Texas as I do, I'm absolutely ashamed of myself for missing," Mrs. Harrison told a magistrate who ordered her held under $10,000 bond on charges of felonious assault and violation of the Firearms act.

In the best tradition of the range, Mrs. Harrison attempted to shoot her husband because he had "done her wrong," when he was returned here by authorities from Canton, O., on an assault information lodged by Mrs. Harrison.

The Harrisons performed on radio and screen as a hill billy team billed as "Tex and Ginger" and operated a dude ranch near here on the side.

The cow country couple's troubles began several weeks ago when, Mrs. Harrison claimed, her husband had left their ranch with the family trailer, a trained horse, a pet dog and a 21-year-old waitress.

Mrs. Harrison had her husband arrested and returned on a warrant which alleged he broke her nose during a marital disagreement.

When she confronted her husband in the county courthouse, Mrs. Harrison went for her "shootin' iron." Detectives grappled with her and the shot went wild, striking a door.

After a five minute battle, three officers disarmed her.

"Next time I'll make a better job of it," she screamed. "I'd rather have him dead than cheating on me. I'm going to get him if it's the last thing I do."

ADMITS DEATHS

Slayer of Wife Confesses to 3 Other Killings.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—(INS)—Charles Garner, 19, serving a term in the Missouri State Penitentiary for drowning his wife last July 2 near Liberal, Mo., has confessed three other murders, Warden Tom Scott said today.

Garner said his first victim was Alvin Collingham, who objected to the youth keeping company with his sister, whom Garner later married. Garner was alleged to have said the death was officially ruled a suicide.

A friend of Collingham's suspected he had been killed, Garner told the warden, so he disposed of the friend, Clem Hall, by poisoning a cup of coffee. It was blamed on heart failure.

Garner allegedly said he killed his wife because she was the only one who knew the truth, and he feared she would expose him. The third death revealed by Garner was that of an unidentified man he said he shoved from a moving freight train near Kansas City in 1936.

PROBERS GIVEN CHARGE OF BIAS, ONE-SIDEDNESS

Industrial Association Urges Wide Changes in Wagner Act; Hear of 'Trap.'

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — A committee of the National Association of Manufacturers declared today that the Wagner act and its administration by the National Labor Relations Board are "a menace to the national welfare."

Recommending sweeping changes the committee said the act was based on "false assumptions," which "have frequently been magnified and accentuated by one-sided and biased administration."

The manufacturers' statement described as "definitely encouraging" the work of the house committee investigating the labor board, which recessed its hearings last night after two committeemen charged that board officials attempted to "entrap" the Inland Steel company into violating the labor law.

Nathan Witt, florid-faced board secretary, denied this was true but acknowledged that, before any charges were filed, he had made suggestions to CIO union officials as to the "quickest way" to get a board decision on the case.

'Entrapment' Hit.

Witt, who was the board's assistant general counsel at the time, said he was acting with the board's full authority and that his idea was to speed up action toward settlement of the 1937 "Little Steel" strike, involving Inland and other companies.

Rep. Routzohn (R.-Ohio) promptly commented that if entrapment was not involved, he did not understand the English language. Rep. Halleck (R.-Ind.) joined the criticism.

Edmund M. Toland, committee counsel, then offered for the record court decisions condemning public officials who "lure" others into crime.

Charles Fahy, board counsel, asserted the labor board is not precluded by the law from "looking into" situations, before charges are filed, where there are "possible" violations of the law. He said that other federal agencies, such as the Interstate Commerce Commission, do the same thing.

With these statements, the committee closed eight days of testimony and recessed for the Christmas holidays until Jan. 5. Its recommendations probably will not be submitted until next year's session of congress is well under way.

PRESENT PLAY

Baptist Church Cast to Give Yule Production Tomorrow.

A play entitled, "The Christmas Child," by Moles and directed by Esther Lantz, will be presented at the Park Avenue Baptist church Thursday at 7 p. m. in connection with the annual Christmas program. Members of the beginners' and primary departments will present special features. Charles Abele, superintendent of the church school, will preside.

Members of the cast for the play will include Marjory Ann Hawkins, Yvonne Kraft, Elisabeth Braker, John Colby, Richard Burton, George Lake, Richard Manross, Charles Cisco and David Husung.

The program committee is composed of Miss Lantz, Mrs. Rolland McAllister, Mrs. W. E. Wygant, and Mrs. A. M. Colby. The candy committee is comprised of Miss Hazel McMeeken, Mrs. Hayes M. Pegler Gives His Views On Thinking, Believes His Brings Results

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Quite a lot of books have been written in the last few years on the subject of thinking, and, as one of the leading thinkers of the period, I might offer some helpful suggestions. I am what you might call a Sears-Roebuck thinker, which is to say that I think in enormous volume on an amazing variety of subjects.

Mine are not de luxe thoughts, but they are good and sturdy and give satisfactory results on the whole, being marketed through a rather extensive list of branch outlets around the country. The fastidious, intellectual trade gives me very little play; also, some of the aristocracy occasionally appear with an idea or opinion of mine picked up just as a lark while out slumming, or with something of mine which has been run up in expensive wordage, retaining, however, the original lines. I suppose I could sue them for infringement, but it would be hardly worth while, as by that time I am thinking of something else.

Some of the stylish, custom thinkers who work over each thought with extreme care, often spending weeks on a single lovely little job of ratiocination, think that I think trash, but I don't care to go that far. I admit I don't ratiocinate. It takes too much time, and I have to turn it out six days a week, including some days when the raw materials aren't very good and the mechanism is creaky.

Moreover, the class thinkers refuse to handle many of the subjects which must be carried in a popular-priced variety line. They are like those old-fashioned apothecaries who give you a look if you ask for a percolator.

I am not Sears-Roebuck any more, you will notice, but a chain of drug-department stores. It may sound to you as though I have got my ideas confused, hop-scotching around that way, from Sears-Roebuck to the drug-department store line, but that isn't it. A thinker in my line of business can't spend all his time on one thought. People want variety. Next paragraph I might be the 5-and-10. I never know from one paragraph to another.

Sometimes, just to keep up on things, I read some of the swanky thinkers. You have to do that occasionally. I press my nose against the pane to see what Walter Lippmann is thinking, or Jimmy Sheean, or Old Man Villard.

I also take a peek at Hamilton Fish Armstrong and Clarence Streit, but if you want to know the honest-to-God's truth, with most of their thoughts I can't tell the pants from the coat.

I started out thinking just the easiest kind of little thoughts, and although, in later years—since I turned pro — I have sometimes thought about Communism and economics — I have avoided complications which would ball up things and spoil the product. I just refuse to try to fit in thoughts which conflict with my own. It is the best way, I find.

If a Communist or an economist wants to think something else, that is all right. They can work their side of the street, and there will be no trouble unless they start picketing me, saying what a punk line of thinking I turn out. But, if they start shooting ballbearings through my window, why, all right, let's go to town. Just because they think differently, is that any sign they think better?

I don't know whether I will get out of the popular line. Naturally, I would like to handle some imported goods, because they do give a place class. But, on the other hand, my regular customers might back away, and there is no percentage for a lot of Ph. D.'s. They are always criticizing, and, moreover, intellectually speaking, they press their own pants and cut their own hair and never give a commercial thinker a chance to make a quarter.

But I suppose Old Man Woolworth envied Tiffany, and I admit that I have a somewhat similar feeling about some of the exclusive thinkers, such as this Reinhold Niebuhr, who last week thought up something special for the nation about the Russian invasion of Finland.

"To condone Russian politics of recent months," he wrote, "on the ground that it is merely power politics in a world in which the power game is still being played, and in which defensive necessities require participation in the game, counters the criticism of only those moral purists who are under the illusion that politics can be sublimated into an exercise of pure moral suasion."

Man, that's thinking!

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Jumbled continuities:

Must be a jinx on the loin-cloth actors. . . . Johnny Weissmuller is Tarzan, just Tarzan, and then there's Jon Hall, the bare-chest of "The Hurricane" who hasn't done a picture since. . . . Goldwyn, who listed Jon as a discovery after the big wind movie, has "sold" him over the Westwood Hills to 20th, along with the completed script for "The Sweetheart of Turret One" which Sam had planned to make. . . . Question: did the "touch" go with the script?

"Dark Command," Republic's epic for next year ("Man of Conquest" style) reunites those stagecoach passengers Claire Trevor and John Wayne. . . . Team will have to be good after "Allegheny Uprising" or it won't be a team any more.

Good, concentrated lesson for impatiently blind-to-talent studios in the one film, "The Great Victor Herbert." . . . There's Mary Martin, who sang around Hollywood and didn't get a tumble until she went to Broadway. . . . There's Allan Jones, who could sing that way all the time that Metro preferred Nelson Eddy. . . . There's Susanna Foster, who as Suzanne Larsen spent a year at Metro without a warble.

One of the stars you didn't see in "Drums Along the Mohawk" was Linda Darnell, proving that the film is quicker than the eye or ear. . . . Linda was assigned to the film, and was in Utah working on it when the studio decided to co-star her with Tyrone Power, yanked her home. . . . Dorris Bowden replaced her, but Linda stayed in one long shot, and her voice is heard saying "They're lost!"

Fans who pride themselves on catching boners in their film fare keep the studios on edge, but how often needlessly! . . . One of the classic errors came in a big mob scene of "Les Miserables." . . . After the cutters and film checkers had seen the scene about 30 times, one of the girls spotted a studio workman moving a studio light at the back of the costumed crowds. . . . Panic and consultation—but they took a chance in view of the high cost of mobs. And not one complaint has been received.

Accent on the historical is a boon to the candle makers. . . . For "Little Old New York" they've used 3,800 in tavern, shop, home and banquet hall scenes. . . . And they've bought another $5,000 worth for other candle-lit pictures—this in an industry whose statistical boast is that its studios use enough electricity in a day to light the whole city of Los Angeles. . . .

This uncertain business: The Jascha Heifetz picture, though it might atone in the subsequent runs, has been a frost in most of the big city houses, where grosses after the opening days indicated "They Shall Have Music" was a misnomer. . . . And yet Heifetz is estimated to have an eager audience of 3,000,000 listeners, which should promise a film audience of four times that figure. . . . Might have one better, as someone suggested, using the Dead End Kids—and a gangster angle!

The fellow who coined that description of Basil Rathbone ("two profiles in search of a face") will like this acid one going the rounds on Richard Greene: "two dimples in search of an expression!"

The book of Isaiah contains more material than that dealing directly with the prophet himself. A series of editors of later date added to it.

Cooperate With Teachers

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

We parents must expect to find some things at school we do not like, for teachers, like parents, are human beings. We may, however, have illusions, thanks to our lack of knowledge and our own imagination. We need to keep perspective. Certainly we can't afford to close our eyes to the many good things happening at school, and the many wonderful teachers there.

We take for granted what is best in our loved ones at home; we don't talk a lot about what is worst in them. That should be our attitude toward teachers and other school officials. We would act far more intelligently and we would do more to make our children happy and successful at school, if we were to cultivate the habit of talking more about the splendid teachers and the many good things occurring at the school.

We might well, indeed, express our appreciation of the school to the teachers and principal face to face. To do so will not only heighten the morale of our children and their teachers, but our own also.

Perhaps I might greatly improve my own attitude in reference to the schools. While I certainly have been sympathetic toward the teachers, my quarrels with certain philosophers of education might have seemed at times to be destructive. I think I had better turn my own eyes more upon the constructive items in our school development, and on the great personalities among our teachers.

More and more letters are coming to me from teachers. And what inspiring letters most of them are! Having spent many years at teacher training and having taught in every grade from the first to the graduate school, inclusive, I am keenly interested in teachers and school problems. I speak before a good many thousand teachers every year.

In so many of these letters from teachers I see great and lovely souls all wrapped up in their children—some of them too conscientious—eagerly endeavoring to find out how to do more for these personalities at school, and how to induce the parents of these children to create a more wholesome atmosphere for them at home.

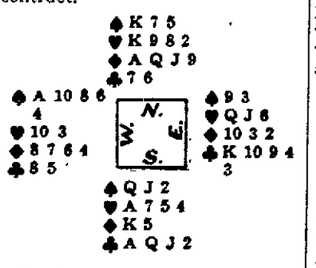
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

NO TRUMP PREFERRED

AS A RULE a major suit contract is preferred if the side holds eight trumps between the two hands, but in some of these situations No Trump will work out better. That is usually so when one opponent has the trump strength more or less bunched against you. He might be sure of a trick in the suit if it were trumps, but might be squeezed out of his cards if No Trump were the contract.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

When North bid 1-Diamond on this deal, his brilliant partner, Arthur L. Pulver, financial analyst, decided to go for a No Trump contract rather than one in a suit, because the game was duplicated. So he forced with the bizarre bid of 2-Spades. When North raised to 3-Spades, he bid 4-No Trumps (Blackwood), North answered with 5-Diamonds. He then bid 5-No Trumps and after the answer of 6-Hearts bid 6-No Trumps.

The heart 10 was led to the king. Then followed a club finesse, the spade king, a second club finesse, the spade queen to the ace, a return to the spade jack, then four consecutive diamonds. When the last was played East had to discard from his two high hearts and his two high clubs. Either discard would build a trick for Mr. Pulver. Who had held in both hearts and clubs the ace and another.

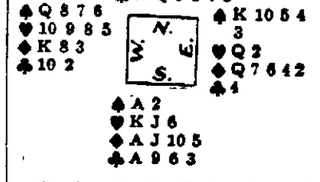
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

While South plays for 6-No Trumps on this deal, how can East discard so as to defeat the contract?

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, December 21.

The prospects are for a day of decided advancement upon desired ends, judging by the lunar aspects, although success and achievement must be wrested from difficulties and tenacious obstacles. These seem to be deep-rooted and treacherous, with both hidden and open dangers, delays and disappointments. But it is probable that all such frustrating circumstances may be dissolved by means of the collaboration, understanding and good will of superiors or employers. Sign papers carefully. Keep things harmonious and happy at home.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year of ultimate triumph over conflicting circumstances, setbacks, duplicities and kindred adversities, mainly through the good offices, wise counsel and confidence of employers, superiors or others of prestige and influence. Take pains to maintain happiness and harmony in personal relations.

A child born on this day may be studious and profound, almost to the point of gloom and melancholy, although it may be kindly, companionable and have friends and position

PARTY AT DELANO.

There were 25 members of the Delano auxiliary in attendance at a Christmas party in Delano hall last evening.. Mrs. Willa Shay conducted the business session, and during the social hour the group sang Christmas carols and had a gift exchange. Holiday appointments decorated the table when luncheon was served. Recently elected officers will be installed at the next meeting, Jan. 9.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I knew that my eavesdropping was justified. For the number she called was that of the hotel at which Philip Veritzen was stopping!

And the name she gave when the hotel operator responded was mine!

"Mrs. Graham calling again," she said smoothly, in an almost perfect imitation of my voice, and I realized that she must have been eavesdropping herself when I had called Philip Veritzen, and had decided that impersonating me was the quickest way of getting in touch with the great theatrical magnate who was wooing her mother.

The operator evidently had had his lesson after my telephone call. At any rate, there was no delay in her connection, and a second later I heard her whisper: "Mr. Veritzen?"

Evidently the Veritzen ears were no better than the operator's, for her next words, while faint, were more audible.

"This is not Mrs. Graham, Mr. Veritzen; this is Olina. I told the operator I was Mrs. Graham so that I could be sure of reaching you."

Then there was a pause, and I knew that Olina was listening to the surprised ejaculations of the great theatrical magnate, together with his flamboyant assurances that she could reach him at any hour, finishing with a query as to how he could serve her. When she spoke again it was with a rush of words.

Couldn't Call Before.

"I'm calling you for two things," she said. "I haven't had a chance all day to get you without somebody hearing me to tell you—you know what you asked me to do?"

In the darkness, I clenched my fingers into my palms to keep from crying out. My intuition—and Mary's—had been justified. There was a secret understanding between Philip Veritzen and the lovely young daughter of the exiled queen whom he hoped to marry, and I was sure it concerned Mary's affairs. I feared some plot against her.

Her next words were illuminating.

"Oh, you know already that she won't do it," she said, and I knew she referred to my refusal to permit Mary to rehearse with the cast until the day following this one, the early hours of which were being so dramatically occupied. "I tried, but it was no use."

There was another silence, and then she spoke again, evidently in answer to a query as to the second thing she wished of him.

"It's something I can't tell you over the telephone," she said, "but it's something terribly important to me. I know how busy you are, but would it be possible for you to come over to the farm house tomorrow forenoon sometime and see me?"

Another silence, and her next reply was confused and less confident.

"No, Maman does not know yet, but I am sure she will approve. And, of course, she will love to see you, she always does—but not before ten o'clock."

A satisfied little laugh punctuated the next interval of silence.

"Half past ten then," she said. "But I can't tell Maman you are coming. I do not wish her to know I telephoned you. I think you will just have to surprise her."

Mansfielder Thanks 'Vendol' Hasn't Felt So Well In Years

Gave gratifying relief from constipation; then dizziness, muscular aches and pains, and nervousness were relieved. Advises others to try this medicine.

"I really haven't felt so well in years and give Vendol all the credit for the big improvement in my looks and feelings," said Mrs. W. A. Wible of 91 E. Third St., Mansfield, to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store.

"I had been feeling terrible for some time and had tried different things but with little help. I was constipated almost every day and this was making me suffer from muscular pains in my arms, back, limbs, and feet, and was also the cause of my nervousness, dizzy spells, and spots dancing before my eyes and kept me feeling shaky and worn out. I really can't begin to tell how those pains in my legs and small of my back made me suffer.

"I often read what people all around here said about Vendol relieving these same troubles that were due to constipation So, I got some Vendol and a box of the little Vendol laxative tablets and started taking this medicine

"Truly, it seemed it was made especially for me because it helped so much that I haven't felt so well in years.

"First, Vendol relieved my constipation in the nicest, most complete fashion, then the aches and pains grew less and less every day; the dizzy feelings and spots before my eyes passed off, and my sleep became restful and unbroken. All of this added up to grand relief so I am glad to tell about it so that everyone suffering the same way, if from the same cause, will not hesitate to get Vendol and see for themselves the marvelous relief it gives."

Give Vendol a chance to help you too. Try this medicine made from extracts of Roots and Herbs with Alkalines added. All druggists sell it and the Vendol Man is daily at Central Drug Store, Cor. Main & Fourth Sts., to explain about it, so see him today.

CANDLELIGHT MAKES SETTING FOR PARTY

Sorosis Members Entertained By Children From Friendly House at Home of Mrs. W. R. King; Sing Carols.

LIGHTED CANDLES in all the windows, and an illuminated and decorated Christmas tree, plus other candles in the house shed a soft glow over the W. R. King residence on Edgewood road last night for the annual party of the Mansfield Sorosis. The program was in charge of Mrs. W. H. Gifford, assisted by Miss Ruth Culbertson, Mrs. W. J. Bishop, Mrs. Fred Troll, Mrs. A. E. Courtney and Mrs. L. B. Bourns.

Carols were sung by the group, and members exchanged gifts. Jingles printed on small paper trees and describing each member were used to present the gifts. Mrs. F. M. Remy and Mrs. John Angle presided at the refreshment table which was decorated with pine boughs and lighted candles.

Mrs. Russell Gimbel, Friendly House, presented a group of the children in a program. Those participating in songs and recitations were Tommy Brittain, Thelma Blank, Dean Eccles, Mildred Mae Blank, Doleres Baquet, Russell Hullinger, Delores Beer, Stanford Schneider, Charles Augustine, Kenyon Schneider, Frances Colarosa, Joan Blank, Phyllis Reed, Doris Reed and Mary Buzenski. The children were appropriately costumed for the program.

The next Sorosis meeting will be held January 9 with Mrs. A. E. Courtney at the Women's Club at 7:30 p. m.

First Shower For Sarabell Kramer Held Last Night

The first in a series of pre-nuptial parties honoring Miss Sarabell Kramer was given by a group of her sorority sisters in Chi Sigma yesterday evening at the Colonial Guest House on the Wooster road. The Misses Florence Nall, Vivian Miller, Rita Newcomer, Mary Strater, Mary Elizabeth Miller, and Mrs. George Park were the hostesses.

Bridge was the evening's diversion, with prizes going to Miss Mary Garver and Miss Janet Olin. Luncheon was served at the small tables following the games, and then the honoree received a shower of miscellaneous gifts from the guests. The hostesses presented her with a gift of linen.

Miss Kramer, who is the bride-elect of John VanWagner of Shelby, will be feted with a supper party this evening at the home of the Misses Margaret and Frances Strickler, 465 Park avenue west. Miss Kramer and Mr. VanWagner will be married at 7:30 o'clock on the evening of Jan. 1, before the altar of the First Presbyterian church.

HOLD SESSION.

Members of the Ladies auxiliary of the Letter Carriers met yesterday with Mrs. Oliver Knarr, Henry street. There were 12 present, and games were played with prizes being presented to Mrs. Foster Ost and Mrs. Glenn Pore. Gifts were exchanged, and the hostess served refreshments. The next meeting will be Jan. 23, with Mrs. Harold Loesch, Hilton avenue.

Younger Pupils Appear In Recital Tuesday

Miss Elizabeth Glendinning presented her younger pupils in a recital at her home, 44 Stewart avenue, last night. She was assisted by Miss Ada Mae Harbaugh who sang "Il Bacio" and "My Lover Is a Fisherman." Parents and friends attended the program.

Those appearing were Jeanne Hathaway, Margaret Cook, Barbara George, Dorothy Weaver, Joan Senert, Anne Parsons, Richard Parsons, Nancy Giles, Louise Black and Francis Davis.

MEET TOMORROW.

Members of the Nitelark club will meet tomorrow with Mrs. Walter Isenberg, 20 Lexington avenue, instead of Friday as was originally planned, it was announced today.

Shopping Around...

With MARIANNE

Marianne

THE proverbial night before Christmas is almost on us, and the time for last minute shopping is getting pretty scarce, so perhaps you'd better take a few final glances at that Christmas list just to make sure you haven't forgotten anyone. . . . If, however, you still have a few gifts to buy, the downtown stores still have lots of good ideas.

* * *

The newest accessories for mid-winter are soft fabric gloves in high shades such as mulberry, tango, shell pink, light blue, gray—and of course, navy, black and white. . . . These would seem a most welcome gift to complement a friend's new costume or brighten up one that's not so new.

Another attractive accessory note is costume jewelry—and since it's so popular this year, most any of us would like to find some under our Christmas tree. . . . Gold seems to lead the parade—with dull and shiny equally important. . . . Mesh chains in varying shades, filagree balls and foxtail chains set with lovely amethysts are some of the very prettiest ones.

ONE of the country's leading woman manufacturers of cosmetics has designed something that might well be the very nicest of all Christmas gifts. . . . It's a fireplace fantasy—one of those picture frame perfume packages. The top of the box is hand painted in cyclamen and white to resemble curtains—then inside there are three little stockings hanging at a mantel—these stockings are of blown glass and contain three scents of perfume—Night and Day, Blue Grass and Cyclamen.

Other last minute gift suggestions might be found in that famous line of spicy early American toiletries. . . . All of the boxes have a wooden effect, brightly painted with gay old-fashioned designs, and can be used for all kinds of things long after the contents are gone. . . . One package, inscribed with "A place for everything and everything in its place," has innumerable little drawers, and although they're filled with soap, they would also be just ideal for sewing supplies. . . . Another box contains four sachets and a little bottle of perfume, while still other packages combine talc, bath salts, cologne and soap.

AND if you're still racking your brain over what to give Cousin Sue, perhaps you might easily solve the problem by giving her a kit—either of make-up or manicure supplies—most of these come in leather cases and contain all the necessities as well as a few luxuries.

* * *

The answer to the problem of what to give Dad, friend husband, brother Bill or the boy friend, might well be found in formal wear accessories. . . . For instance, a popular type of shirt to be worn with a tuxedo has a pleated bosom, attached collar and French cuffs. . . . Sets of a tie, flower, cummerbund and hankie must all match, but they can be purchased in wine, green or blue. . . . Formal jewelry includes white or black pearl studs and links. . . . Monogrammed white silk scarfs add just the right note to formal attire—as does a high hat.

AND if you'd rather not give "him" any more shaving supplies, why not surprise him with a bottle of special after bath cologne for men—the newest of these is Woodhue, which comes in a tricky bottle trimmed with tooled brown leather.

* * *

Note: The styles described above are available in Mansfield shops. You can learn where they may be obtained if you will telephone Marianne at The News-Journal between 1 and 2:30 p. m.—Canal 4251.

PRESIDENT RETURNS AS SORORITY HEAD

Miss Isabel Gerstmeyer to Serve Alpha Pi Sigma Another Year; Plans for Feb. 3 Formal Dance Made.

MISS ISABEL GERSTMEYER was re-elected president of Alpha Pi Sigma sorority last evening during a business and social meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. She will be assisted by Miss Phyllis Brown as vice-president. Miss Ann Hager was named corresponding secretary, and Mrs. C. Richard Martin was elected financial secretary. Others chosen to office last evening were: Mrs. Louise Beal, prelate; Miss Marie Massa, master of work; Mrs. Ralph Andregg, sergeant-at-arms.

These officers will be installed on Jan. 2 at the hotel, with Mrs. Charles E. Ticknor and Miss Annabelle Strong in charge of the buffet supper. Mrs. Martin was also appointed general chairman of the sorority's formal dance to be held on Feb. 3 at the hotel ball room. Ray Jacquet's orchestra will furnish the music for dancing from 10 until 2 o'clock that evening. Miss Brown is head of the ticket committee, and Mrs. Andregg is planning decorations of the ball room.

Bridge was played at last night's meeting, with prizes going to Miss Marie Kalbfleisch and Mrs. Alyce Vahar. Luncheon was served following the games. Mrs. Donald Snyder and Mrs. John Sprosty were hostesses for the meeting.

The sorority members are planning to have a progressive dinner party and Christmas exchange on Dec. 27. Mrs. D. D. Hattman, 213 Rhein avenue; Mrs. Martin, 214 South Diamond street; Miss Kalbfleisch, 127 West Fourth street, and Miss Massa; 137 South Main, will serve the dinner courses at their homes that evening.

SCOUT MEETING.

Members of Scout troop 11 met yesterday with Gertrude Sterling, First avenue, and decided to contriubte a complete outfit each for welfare work. They also packed holiday baskets. The next meeting will be held after the school vacation.

Additional Society on Women's Page.

Morning Program Friday Will Close Country School

Classes at Country Day school, Blymyer avenue, will close Friday at noon, and just preceding the cessation of work, the children will present a Christmas program for parents and friends. The kindergarten will sing "Christmas Tree," "Santa Claus Is Coming," "Santa Claus," and "Away in a Manger" for the opening numbers.

The primary grades will give the choral speaking and song including "The Night Before Christmas," "Up on the House Top," and "Once in Royal David's City," with Patsy Weamer and Ellen Bromfield taking the roles in the latter piece.

A sketch, "The Ruggles Family," from "The Bird's Christmas Carol," will be given by the upper grades, with Verna Beth Graham, Elizabeth Funk, Sherry Carr, Sigrid Meisse, Susan Stoodt, Jim Draffan, Hunt Brown, Bobby Young, Vera Saleste, and George Gernhardt in the various parts.

Songs will be given by the same group, featuring George Gernhardt playing the tone bells, and Jim Draffan at the piano. They will sing "Joy to the World" and "Silent Night."

Fortnight Club Annual Dinner Event of Tuesday

Members of the Fortnight club had their annual Christmas dinner party at the Women's Club yesterday evening, with Miss June Shires and the program committee in charge of arrangements. The tables were decorated with seasonal appointments for the occasion.

The program was opened, when each of the members gave a Christmas quotation or thought. Mrs. Joseph Michael then told the Christmas story from the Bible, and Miss Elsie Smith read "The Man Who Was Too Busy to Find a Child. The poinsettia and Christmas tree were discussed by Mrs. R. K. Esselburn, while Mrs. B. L. Chase told of the origin of Christmas carols and hymns.

William Michael furnished the musical portion of the program by singing a group of Christmas carols and hymns, accompanied at the piano by Raymond Daum. Mrs. Anna Knote will be hostess for the next club meeting, Jan. 9.

Name New Officers At Christmas Affair

Mrs. Charles Brindle, Mrs. Walter Brindle and Mrs. Harry Packham were guests of the Buena Vista club yesterday for a covered dish dinner at the Mifflin Township Community house. A Christmas gift exchange and carols were diversions of the afternoon.

Officers for the coming year were elected during the business session. They are: Mrs. L. F. Hout, president; Mrs. H. H. Hout, vice president; Mrs. Kenneth Nixon, secretary; Mrs. Ray Hout, treasurer; and Mrs. Gerald Dudley, reporter. Mrs. Nixon will have the meeting of Jan. 24 at her home on the Ashland road.

ENTERTAINS STUDENTS.

Mrs. LeRoy Teeter entertained with a Christmas party for a group of her young piano pupils yesterday afternoon at her home, 60 West Prospect street. Games, piano selections, carols and a gift exchange were all features of the affair.

HAVE DINNER.

A Santa Claus and reindeer, and individual candle favors were used to decorate the dinner table last night when members of the A. B. C. club had their Christmas party at the home of Miss Sue Yanoschek, 286 Third avenue. Gifts were exchanged. The next meeting will be held Jan. 4 at the home of Mrs. Thomas Posa, jr., 90½ East Second street.

Entire Student Body In Cast For Prospect Entertainment

THURSDAY at 7:30 p. m. the entire student body of the Prospect school will present a Christmas program at the school building. The opening selection will be a choral processional to the tune of "O, Come All Ye Faithful" followed by the first grade giving the prayer.

"O, Little Town of Bethlehem" will be sung by the third grade, with all the children giving the Bible selection. Continuing the first grade will sing "Away in a Manger," and the fifth graders will give the recitation "Christmas In the Heart."

Members of the Boys' chorus will follow with "We Three Kings," and the third grade will recite "At Christmas." All the children will sing "Silent Night," and the second grade will give both a song and recitation.

Other numbers are "Come Softly" by the third grade, "Christmas Bells," a recitation by the third grade; "While Shepherds Watch Their Flocks" by the second grade and "The Christmas Carol" by the fourth grade.

In conclusion the fifth grade will sing "Cantique Noel," the sixth grade will give the story "Why the Chimes Rang," and the second grade will sing "My Christmas Wish."

FETED.

Members of the Mothersingers club of West Fifth street school honored Mrs. H. D. Bishop, director, and Mrs. L. E. Rahn, pianist, with a party yesterday afternoon at the school. A surprise handkerchief shower for the two women was a feature of the afternoon. Mrs. Nelson Neff was a guest.

THEATERS

Frederick C. Othman, United Press Hollywood correspondent, says the film city's eccentricities make it the maddest place in the world. It is the only city in the land that has: press agents for cemeteries; wealthy actors ride in station wagons and poor ones ride in limousines; where celebrities adopt children because they haven't time to have their own; a man, (like Ken Murray) can turn on his own rain in his own front yard when he wants it; people who earn $4,000 a week belong to the American Federation of Labor; $4,000 autos have big sales; swimming pools are filled with engine oil (for photographic reflections); where inch-long fingernails are cut off and made into necklaces; and where actors who are merely good are labeled "terrific."

Remember to Forget.

"Remember?" brings an interesting trio and triangle romance to the Ohio theater for three days, starting today. Greer Garson, who made her screen debut in "Good Bye, Mr. Chips," plays the girl who is engaged to one man and in love with his friend; Robert Taylor plays the friend, and Lew Ayres the analytical fiance who dopes out a way to make the lovers forget by remembering. A potion which causes mental lapses brings strange results and the outcome is as nonsensical as it sounds.

All-American Story.

A 100 per cent American story is told in "Joe and Ethel Turp Call on The President," which is a Madison theater attraction. The story is based on the famous Damon Runyon characters and in particular on his Saturday Evening Post story of the young people who call on the president to talk over the predicament of their friend, the old postman, who has been arrested for destroying a registered letter. Ann Sothern and William Gargan are the Turps. Walter Brennan the postman and Lewis Stone the president. Irene Dare, young skating star, is featured in "Everything's On Ice."

Opera In Colors.

The Gilbert and Sullivan opera "The Mikado," which was shown in Mansfield one night for a benefit performance, is being offered at the Ritz today and Thursday. Kenny Baker plays and sings the role of Nanki Poo. All of the other roles are in the hands of well known singers who are not in pictures. The second feature is a revival of "The Champ," which was the greatest of the early Wallace Beery-Jackie Cooper pictures.

Plenty of Trouble.

Charlie Ruggles has plenty of "Boy Trouble" in the picture of that name which is being shown at the Majestic. His wife adopts a boy from the Orphans home and Ruggles is forced to adopt another. He loses his job, is quarantined in a neighbor's house, has to nurse one of the boys through the scarlet fever, and then has to fight the orphanage board in order to keep both boys. Mary Boland is costarred with Ruggles. Also shown is "Good Bye, Mr. Chips" with Robert Donat and Greer Garson.

Fashions Featured.

Warner Baxter and Joan Bennett head the cast of "Walter Wanger Vogues of 1938," which is current at the Park. Their romance—that of a famous dress designer and his loveliest model—is the frame on which is hung several tuneful songs and a marvelous fashion show. Helen Vinson has the role of the stagestruck wife. Some of America's best known models take part in the fashion revue. Also shown is "Behind The Mask" with Boris Karloff and Jack Holt.

Pupils of Nine Union District Schools to Give Operetta.

Elementary pupils from nine schools in the Union Rural school district will present the operetta, "Hansel and Gretel," Friday night in the Union high school auditorium, as their Christmas program.

Schools represented are the Franklin, Olivesburg and Pavonia schools in Weller township, Amoy, British, Pleasant Grove and Pleasant Valley schools of Franklin township, and Gangcs and Shenandoah schools in Bloominggrove township. O. H. Meckley, music supervisor in the district, is directing the operetta, assisted by teachers of the various schools.

Proceeds from the show will be used to repair and tune the pianos in the elementary buildings.

Public speaking classes at Union high school will present a Christmas program in the auditorium Friday afternoon. All schools in the Union district will close Friday afternoon for their Christmas vacation, re-opening Wednesday, Jan. 3, J. E. McCollough, superintendent, announced.

CLAIM SETTLED IN AUTO MISHAP

Guardian Authorized to Accept $1,000 for Boy's Injuries.

Atty. R. J. Nichols, guardian for Donald Boyle, 5, of 87 East Fourth street, had been authorized today in probate court to accept $1,000 damages for injuries suffered by the boy last Oct. 25 when he was struck by an automobile.

The $1,000 settlement was proposed by Ivan T. Fleming, 275 West First street, driver of the car which struck the child at East Fourth and Adams streets. The boy is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boyle.

Fleming denied responsibility for the boy's injuries, contending that he ran in front of the car.

GALION—Tony Neri of South Boston street, underwent a tonsillectomy Tuesday morning at Good Samaritan hospital. Florice Reichard was dismissed from the hospital Tuesday and taken to her home in Crestline.

PAM— "A Break!" By A. W. Brewerton

POOR KID! SO SHE FIGURED, IF SHE TOOK HER OWN LIFE — IF HE KNEW SHE WAS DEAD — WHY, HE'D NO LONGER FEAR HER EXPOSING HIM — AND HE'D NOT HARM HER PARENTS!
12-20
--HIS THREAT TO INJURE THEM — WAS PROBABLY ONLY A THREAT — BUT I'LL GET IN TOUCH WITH SOME ONE IN THEIR TOWN, RIGHT AWAY! — SATISFY HER THEY'RE SAFE! — AND I THINK THAT DANGER IS OVER, NOW! — I'LL TELL YOU WHY!
--THAT MAN WHO CAME TO SEE HER — THE SHOCK OF WHICH RESTORED HER MEMORY — WAS OF COURSE HER HUSBAND, BRUCE MARSHALL — AND HE NOW BELIEVES HER MEMORY IS GONE! — THAT HE'S SAFE — SEE? — HE'LL LEAVE HER ALONE!
IT'S A BIG BREAK FOR US — IF — HE DOESN'T FIND OUT HER MEMORY HAS BEEN RESTORED!
BUT HOW DID THAT MAN EVER TRACE JENNY TO THE HOSPITAL?

STOCKS TRUDGE NARROW ROUTE IN SLOW MART

Selective Buying Lifts Few Favored Shares as Main List Remains Unchanged.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market trudged a narrow path today with selective buying lifting a few favored shares.

The opening was slow and trading remained restricted, and later price variations were mostly fractional.

Resistant were Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, General Electric Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck and American Telephone.

Those unchanged or lower included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Goodyear, New York Central, American Smelting, and Caterpillar.

Consolidated Aircraft failed to respond much to an announcement the company had been awarded a $20,000,000 navy order.

Brokers who had expected some sort of a traditional rise in the market before Christmas said their customers apparently could not see anything in the picture at present to induce them to buy.

Foreign markets were irregular. Bonds tended higher and commodities fell back.

Among overnight developments of interest in board rooms was a lift in the price of bunker fuel oil and heating oil in the North Atlantic region attributed to higher tanker rates from the Gulf coast and heavy demand.

Virtually simultaneously came the announcement crude production last week increased moderately and while runs to refineries were cut, gasoline stocks were boosted by the absence of foreign purchases.

Again electric power output, for the week ended Dec. 15, rose to a record peak of 2,604,556,000 kilowatt hours.

Noted was the estimate of the bureau of agricultural economics that farm marketing income for this year totaled about $7,625,000,000 against $7,627,000,000 in 1938.

ORDINANCE NO. 39-230

By Mr. Miller:

An ordinance to provide for the continuance of Emergency Poor Relief in the City of Mansfield, and the appropriation of funds therefore, authorizing the Board of County Commissioners of Richland County, Ohio, to act in behalf of the City of Mansfield in the administration of Poor Relief, authorizing the Director of Public Service-Safety to enter into an agreement with the Board of County Commissioners, and repealing Ordinance No. 38-34, passed on the 22nd day of March, 1938.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF MANSFIELD, STATE OF OHIO.

Section 1. That the Director of Public Service-Safety be and he hereby is authorized to enter into an agreement with the County Commissioners of Richland County, Ohio, whereby such Board of County Commissioners is authorized to exercise any power or powers to perform any functions, or render any services in behalf of the City of Mansfield, which said city or its legislative authority is, or may be, authorized to exercise, perform or render with respect to the administration of Poor Relief in the City of Mansfield.

Section 2. That the Director of Public Service be and he hereby is authorized to provide in said agreement that in consideration for the performance of the agreement by said County Commissioners, the Auditor and Treasurer of Richland County, Ohio, they be and hereby are authorized to retain in the County Treasury, of the amounts due from general taxes collected for the city of Mansfield, the sum of $550.00 per month for the administrative costs of handing Poor Relief in said city.

Section 3. In consideration of the payment by the City of said sum of $550.00 per month, until the expiration of said agreement, said County Commissioners are to do all things necessary to administer poor relief in said city, and such services shall include the providing of adequate personnel, quarters, office supplies and equipment, distribution of surplus commodities, preparations of certifications to WPA, statistical reports, and all other functions incident to the administration of Poor Relief in said city.

Section 4. That all funds for Poor Relief purposes allocated and to be allocated by the County Commissioners of Richland County, Ohio, to the City of Mansfield, and any other moneys for purposes of relief, from any source, when, and as received by said city be and the same are hereby ordered deposited in a special fund of the city, to be known as Emergency Poor Relief Fund, and all of said funds are hereby appropriated for expenditures for Poor Relief. And the City Auditor be and he hereby is authorized and directed to draw his warrants on the city Treasurer for payment from said appropriation for all Poor Relief purposes, upon receipt of vouchers approved by the officers authorized by law.

Section 5. It shall be understood in said agreement that the Board of County Commissioners of Richland County, Ohio, are not obligated to furnish direct relief for relief clients in the City of Mansfield, but are only to provide the necessary facilities as set forth above, to administer relief.

Section 6. That said agreement shall be of indefinite duration, and may be rescinded at any time by resolution of either the Board of County Commissioners of Richland County, Ohio, or this Council, effective at the end of the fiscal year, but not sooner than six (6) months after such rescinding resolution shall have been certified and declared to the Clerk of Council or to the Clerk of the Board of Commissioners as the case may be.

Section 7. That Ordinance No. 38-34, passed on the 22nd day of March 1938, be and the same is hereby repealed.

Section 8. This ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after the earliest period allowed by law.

Passed December 19, 1939.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Laundry Stolen—A package of shirts left by the laundry was stolen off the back porch of the Lester Redding home, 72 Penn avenue, yesterday afternoon, police were told.

Y. M. C. A. Meetings—Meetings scheduled for Thursday at the Y. M. C. A. are the Tau Gamma Rho Hi-Y club and Frank Lahm Cadets both at 7:30 p. m., and the Phalanx fraternity at 8:30 p. m.

Stage Yule Program—The Beer school, on the Wooster road, will stage a Christmas program at the school at 8 p. m. tonight for students, parents and members of the community. The children, directed by Miss Mary Stuff, will give the program.

Christmas Party—Boy Scout troop No. 2 at Brinkerhoff school will hold a Christmas party at 7:30 p. m. Thursday at troop headquarters. Robert Taylor, scoutmaster, is in charge of arrangements.

Room Robbed—Fred Wolf, 227 North Main street, told police yesterday that some one had entered his room in his absence and had stolen an overcoat and a victrola which was the property of the Aid To The Blind state department.

Legion Dinner Tonight—McVey Post, American Legion, will hold its annual pre-Christmas dinner at the post home at 6:30 p. m. today. It will be a turkey dinner for members only.

Son Missing—Henry Swartz, 208 Wayne street, reported that his son, Henry, 15, had left home yesterday morning, taking a suitcase with him. The father believed the son intended to hitch hike his way to California where he has two brothers. He asked police to locate the boy if possible.

Receives Promotion—E. S. Willard, Mansfield district sales manager for the Pure Oil company, has been made assistant in charge of jobber operations in the state. His headquarters will be in Columbus, effective Jan. 1. Ralph E. Lewis, assistant sales manager for the past two years, will take over the Mansfield post.

Erect Tree—Employes at City hall will erect and decorate their own Christmas tree in the upper hall of the building today. The tree was donated by Charles O. Anglin of the water department and the ornaments are being provided by city employes.

House Ransacked—James Clemens, 219 Lexington avenue, called police last evening when he returned home and found the front door opened and the house ransacked. A women's purse in a bedroom had been opened and $20 in cash and several postal stamps taken.

Office Closes—The state Bureau of Unemployment Compensation office, 50 North Diamond street, will be closed Saturday and Monday in observance of Christmas, C. W. Handley, district manager said today. Claimants scheduled to report on Saturday or Monday have been asked to call at the office Tuesday.

140 ON WPA GET HOLIDAY UNTIL NEW JOBS OPEN

3 Projects Costing $63,800 to Be Started Following Christmas Vacation.

With three Richland county WPA projects completed today, 140 government employes were on vacation until next Tuesday when work is scheduled to begin on three new projects in the county, it was announced today..

Carl Adkins, county WPA supervisor of construction said the projects scheduled to open next Tuesday will include three road construction jobs totaling $63,800.

These include the construction of a new pavement at the municipal, garbage disposal plant, South Diamond street road widening and drainage project, and the Handley road, Washington township, grading and drainage project.

Adkins said the 140 workers which have been employed on the Mansfield and Shelby streets projects and the Mifflin township road job have been transferred to the new projects scheduled to open Tuesday.

He said 75 men had been transferred to the Handley road project which will cost $36,000. They will be employed about six months.

Work on South Diamond street road which is estimated to cost $20,000 will take about three months and will employ 30 men.

The construction of a new 20 foot pavement from Park avenue east to the garbage disposal plant will cost $7,800 and will employ 35 workers for two months.

2 INDICTMENTS NAME HUNTERS

One Accused of Assault on Farmer, Other Charged With Menacing Boy With Gun.

Two hunters held in the county jail in connection with an alleged assault on a Washington township farmer Monday night were served with indictments returned earlier yesterday by the Richland county grand jury.

Clarence Lape, 26, was charged with assault and battery, and Clark Walker, 24, was indicted on a charge of pointing a revolver at a 15-year-old Washington township youth. Both men live in Bellville.

The indictments were among the 11 sub-rosa bills returned yesterday by the September grand jury which had been recalled to hear 18 cases. It also returned six open indictments.

Lape was charged in the indictment with assaulting Bert Walker with his rifle when the former ordered the pair from his property.

Walker was accused of pointing a gun at Paul Miller when the youth accosted the men on his parents' farm adjacent to the Walker property and told them to leave the premises.

Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston today set 9 a. m. Friday for arraignment of the pair. Pleas in six other cases will also be heard at that time.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Oscar Herring has been named acting postmaster at Oak Harbor, O., by the postoffice department.

As Santa Claus Visited Crippled Children

—News-Journal Photos.

Three of the people who got the biggest kick out of the annual Rotary club's party for crippled children, given at the Leland ballroom yesterday, were, shown in top photo, Louis Hartman, Mrs. Hartman (center) and Mrs. W. L. Miller. The Hartmans did the shopping in connection with the gifts for the children, and Mrs. Hartman, Mrs. Miller, and Mrs. Paul Stephens, who was unable to attend the party, decorated the room and the Christmas tree. Below are shown three of the guests from the Sunshine school as they received gifts from Santa Claus. Santa, incidentally, looked exactly like Floyd Dent. The children are, left to right, John Komjenovich, Willie Muntan and Geraldine Pesano.

FORGET BRACES AND CRUTCHES

Crippled Children Happy as Rotary Club's Santa Claus Unpacks Gifts.

There were three pine trees growing in the forest—and the green costumes made the children look like pointed trees, with bits of snow on their branches—and two were very tall and haughty and refused shelter to the Red Bird with the broken wing. But the littlest tree with the stubby branches was kind and gave the bird shelter and so it was the littlest tree with the bird in its branches that was chosen by the woodsman for a Christmas tree for his children. And they were taken to a home where there were lights and children and joyousness, while the two haughty trees were left alone on the hillside.

The play was particularly important because the children had written part of it themselves and had made their own costumes and they had a lot of fun in presenting it. They sang songs, too, for their hosts.

And at the end of the program, Santa Claus came in, wearing the traditional suit of red and on his back was a big red pack simply bulging with personal gifts. Santa looked exactly like a Mansfield man—in fact, many said he looked enough like Floyd Dent to be his twin brother.

Every gift had a name on it and when the recipient opened it, there was exactly what he or she had asked for. There were books and dolls and flashlights — everything that 19 small boys and girls could think of.

There was other entertainment, too; there was the S. K. Jorgensen orchestra, and LeMoine Derr's quartet from Senior High school. And after the musical program there were motion pictures intended primarily for the entertainment of small folks—but many of the Rotarians stayed until the very last reel had been run.

G. J. Kochenderfer, president of the club, presided at the dinner, but "Uncle Billy" Mead took over the entertainment. The ballroom had been decorate by three Rotaryanns—Mrs. W. L. Miller, Mrs. Louis Hartman and Mrs. Paul Stephens, while Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hartman had acted as aide to Santa Claus and had carefully selected each gift.

The annual Christmas party for crippled children was started about 15 years ago, with Rotarians E. K. Bacon and Louis A. Ott in charge. 61 GIRLS GIVEN SPORTS AWARDS AT JUNIOR HIGH

Officers of Simpson Athletic Association, Emblem Group Named at Dinner.

Athletic awards were presented 61 members of the Girls' Athletic association of John Simpson Junior high school, and officers of the Emblem and G. A. A. associations were named at the semi-annual dinner of the group at the Central Methodist church last night.

Named to head the G. A. A. for the next semester are Dorothy Norris, president, Arlene Ridenour, secretary, Ruth Blumenschein, vice president, and Marjorie Urich, treasurer. Miss Norris succeeds Rose Swoyer. Girls named to head the Emblem group are Ruth Blumenschein, president, Dorothy Norris, vice president, and Marilyn Gernhart, secretary-treasurer. Miss Blumenschein succeeds Miriam Hoff.

Miss Swoyer, outgoing president, of the G. A. A. was presented with an emblem by Miss Wilma Snider, adviser, for her work during the past semester.

Five members of the association were given G. A. A. honor pins for earning 1,500 points in athletic games. These pins, the highest award given, went to Virginia Garrison, Miriam Hoff, Etabelle Hunter, Elaine Logas and Barbara McDowell. Miss Hunter also received a special pin for having the highest number of points in the association.

26 Receive Emblems.

Emblems went to 26 girls for earning 1,000 points in athletic competition and numerals went to 30 others for earning 600 points. Those who earned their emblems are eligible for membership in the Emblem association.

Those who earned their emblems are Eleanor Brandt, Norma Dent, Lois Grove, Dorothy Hainer, Mildred Hardy, Marjorie Hegnauer and Janet Robertson, 9-A class, and Evelyn Art, Lenore Betz, Ruth Blumenshein, Margaret Buhr, Lucille Calver, Edith Engelsrud, Marilyn Gernhardt, Doris Lutz, Marjorie McClure, Dorothy Norris, Juanita Rand, Arlene Ridenour, LaVonna Shaefer, Shirley Stichler, Marjorie Urich, Eleanor Wilging, Virginia Wymond, Mildred Stone and Donna Jean Boyce, 9-B class.

Numerals went to Margaret Casteldo, Lois Casto, Lois Grove, Peggy Morgan, Mary Star, Louise Cross, Leila Altman, Betty Rizer, Edith Hawkins, 9-A; Virginia Campbell, Evelyn Eichinger, Evelyn Griffith, Mary Betty Hoffman, Ruth LeMunyon, Marceil Pluck, Betty Underwood, Phyllis Schaaf, Marjorie Urich, Mildred Webb, Marjorie Wentz, Ruth Snyder, Doris Scisinger, 9-B, and Jean Bucher, Kathryn Fensch, Virginia Marion, Virginia Webber, Betty Wentz, Annie Zivkoff, Mary Helen Criffith and Josephine Waterhouse, 8-B class. Awards were presented by Miss Snider.

About 250 members of the association attended the dinner. Guests included Principal and Mrs. H. J. Dotson, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Blauser, Glenn G. Rohleder, principal of Hedges Junior high school, and various members of the school faculty.

ATTENDANCE OFF

Miller's Report Shows Slight Drop During November.

Attendance in Mansfield schools showed a slight decline in November while the number of pupils who were neither absent nor tardy dropped from 4,032 in October to 3,657 last month, reports to Supt. W. L. Miller showed today.

Average attendance for all the schools in November was 94.5 per cent as compared with 95.6 per cent in October.

Hedges elementary school had the best attendance mark last month at 97.5 per cent, taking the lead from West Fifth street school which had 98.2 per cent in October.

There were 591 cases of tardiness last month and 25 truancy cases. Seven schools had no truancy, the reports showed. They were Brinkerhoff, Bushnell, Newman, Prospect, West Fifth, Woodland and Western avenue.

$9,600 In Extra Jobless Benefits Go to 763 In Area

A brighter Christmas for 763 jobless in Richland and Morrow counties was assured today with the distribution of $9,600 in unemployment benefit checks to the unemployed of the two-county district.

The checks, averaging about $12, were mailed as the result of a re-determination of the awards due unemployment compensation recipients, H. C. Atkinson, bureau administrator, said. The money went to persons whose original benefit checks were in amounts lower than now authorized.

More than 100,000 persons in Ohio received checks totaling $1,321,000, Atkinson said.

In Ashland county, 173 persons received $2,200, while $5,800 was distributed in 458 checks in Bucyrus, and 361 Norwalk residents got $4,600.

KILLED ON HUNTING TRIP

YOUNGSTOWN — (AP) — Accidental discharge of a shotgun held by a hunting companion killed 16-year-old William Hammell of nearby Mineral Ridge yesterday.

Santa and the TALKING DOLL

by SIGRID ARNE

They whispered and they pointed at her. They laughed.

THE STORY SO FAR: Eric, the son of Lightning, and Leezen, a doll, are headed for the castle of an evil king who makes friends quarrel. If they break his spell the Fairy Queen has said they may go to the Kingdom beyond the sunset.

CHAPTER 15

The Evil King.

ERIC and Leezen set out immediately for the kingdom of the evil spirit that makes men quarrel. The Queen of Fairies accompanied them to the gate, and the white fox trotted behind them.

Just outside the gate the Queen of Fairies said, "Now I must leave you. Remember that this evil king is called 'Chatter.' He will seem full of fun. He will try to please you. But then he will try to make you angry with each other. If he succeeds you will never see each other again. If he doesn't, you may do as you wish."

Eric and Leezen listened. The white fox whined a little. His silky hair stood straight up on his back. The Fairy Queen disappeared and Eric pulled a long bell cord at the gate. He smiled at Leezen to give her courage.

The gate swung open and there stood King Chatter himself. He was a roly-poly man with a broad smile. He was dressed magnificently in red velvet with gold chains about his neck. He took Eric and Leezen by the hands, saying, "How charming. Come in."

SMILES OF WELCOME

So they walked into the castle with the white fox behind hanging his tail between his legs. The King led them into a handsome hall where a dinner was set. There were gold plates and crystal goblets and great bowls filled with shining red tulips.

Nearby three musicians played on harps. There was a group of fine ladies and gentlemen already seated. Everyone was smiling and all nodded welcome.

Through the dinner Eric and Leezen could find nothing that displeased them. After dinner the musicians played waltzes and everyone danced.

Then King Chatter clapped his hands and everyone listened. He chuckled and said, "Now I have a game for us all to play. Beyond that door," and he pointed to a great, double door of carved walnut, "there lies a perplexing corridor. It winds in and out in the castle walls. We shall start through and the first ones back will receive gifts."

"Fine," shouted everyone. So the doors were opened and the group started through the long winding hall ahead. It was lighted with candles. But it was a magic corridor. It was made with mirrors set at such curious angles that people seemed to think they could see around corners. The group walked and walked, some getting ahead, some falling behind. Eric and Leezen were the last in line with the white fox following Eric.

And finally Leezen found herself in a small turn of the corridor alone. She kept looking at her many images in the fine mirrors as she passed but then she stopped in hurt surprise. In one mirror she saw Eric talking and laughing with another man in the company. They whispered and they pointed at her. They laughed. "They're making fun of me," whispered Leezen to herself. She couldn't hear them, but she could see them. "Patience, patience," she whispered to herself. "This is King Chatter's evil."

HORRIBLE FACES

At the same time Eric was having the same experience. He thought he saw Leezen talking about him with another woman in the party. But Eric only grinned and walked on. He remembered the Queen's warning.

Both of them walked through the mirrored corridors for an hour. Then two hours. Each little while they thought they saw each other. Sometimes the images made horrible faces.

Sometimes they seemed to whisper. Once Leezen was so sure it was really Eric ridiculing her that she started to run. "He's hateful! Eric is cruel," said a whisper in the air. "No, no," shouted Leezen to the mirrored walls. "Eric is good—but—but—," and she wept.

She ran weeping, and finally she was back out in the big banquet hall. There sat King Chatter looking sullen. And there stood Eric. Leezen hesitated for a minute, and then she ran to his side and said, "Oh, I'm so glad to see you."

As she said it, King Chatter snored loudly. His servants began putting out the fire, locking doors, clearing the table and pulling down shades.

"Come let's go," said Eric. They ran from the castle and down to the gate.

Tomorrow: A new task is set for Eric and Leezen.

WESTINGHOUSE KEEPS EXHIBIT

Company Says It'll Return to World's Fair Next Year; Elektro Popular.

The exhibit of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company which was viewed by millions of visitors at the World's Fair in New York City last summer, will be continued through 1940, A. W. Robertson, chairman of the Westinghouse board, has announced.

Robertson said at his Pittsburgh office that the company's decision was due to the success of the fair this year, which was visited by more than 26,000,000 people. Of this number 6,500,000 visited the Westinghouse exhibit.

Elektro, the mechanical man which was built in the Mansfield plant by its designer, J. M. Barnett, will be a part of the second year's exhibit. Elektro is the successor to Willie Vocalite, who made his debut at the Chicago fair five years ago and who was shown at the San Francisco fair this year.

Elektro was the second most popular feature of the Westinghouse exhibit at the New York fair, being topped only by the Time Capsule which was sunk in a well where it is to remain for 5,000 years.

The mechanical man will take on some new "tricks" and other human traits during his stay in the Westinghouse laboratory here this winter.

SEARS MANAGER GOES TO FLORIDA

Washburn Leaves Saturday to Take Over Store In Sarasota.

L. J. Washburn, manager of the Sears, Roebuck and company store here for the past five and a half years, will leave Saturday for Sarasota, Fla., where he will take over a new store which is being opened there.

Washburn came to the Mansfield store in June, 1935, from Chicago. His place will be taken here by A. R. Jones, who has been his assistant. Mrs. Washburn and their daughter, Harriet, left Mansfield for Florida two months ago. They have been residing at 395 Park avenue west.

140 ON WPA GET HOLIDAY UNTIL NEW JOBS OPEN

3 Projects Costing $63,800 to Be Started Following Christmas Vacation.

With three Richland county WPA projects completed today, 140 government employes were on vacation until next Tuesday when work is scheduled to begin on three new projects in the county, it was announced today..

Carl Adkins, county WPA supervisor of construction said the projects scheduled to open next Tuesday will include three road construction jobs totaling $63,800.

These include the construction of a new pavement at the municipal, garbage disposal plant, South Diamond street road widening and drainage project, and the Handley road, Washington township, grading and drainage project.

Adkins said the 140 workers which have been employed on the Mansfield and Shelby streets projects and the Mifflin township road job have been transferred to the new projects scheduled to open Tuesday.

He said 75 men had been transferred to the Handley road project which will cost $36,000. They will be employed about six months.

Work on South Diamond street road which is estimated to cost $20,000 will take about three months and will employ 30 men.

The construction of a new 20 foot pavement from Park avenue east to the garbage disposal plant will cost $7,800 and will employ 35 workers for two months.

2 INDICTMENTS NAME HUNTERS

One Accused of Assault on Farmer, Other Charged With Menacing Boy With Gun.

Two hunters held in the county jail in connection with an alleged assault on a Washington township farmer Monday night were served with indictments returned earlier yesterday by the Richland county grand jury.

Clarence Lape, 26, was charged with assault and battery, and Clark Walker, 24, was indicted on a charge of pointing a revolver at a 15-year-old Washington township youth. Both men live in Bellville.

The indictments were among the 11 sub-rosa bills returned yesterday by the September grand jury which had been recalled to hear 18 cases. It also returned six open indictments.

Lape was charged in the indictment with assaulting Bert Walker with his rifle when the farmer ordered the pair from his property.

Walker was accused of pointing a gun at Paul Miller when the youth accosted the men on his parents' farm adjacent to the Walker property and told them to leave the premises.

Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston today set 9 a. m. Friday for arraignment of the pair. Pleas in six other cases will also be heard at that time.

As Santa Claus Visited Crippled Children

—News-Journal Photos.

Three of the people who got the biggest kick out of the annual Rotary club's party for crippled children, given at the Leland ballroom yesterday, were, shown in top photo, Louis Hartman, Mrs. Hartman (center) and Mrs. W. L. Miller. The Hartmans did the shopping in connection with the gifts for the children, and Mrs. Hartman, Mrs. Miller, and Mrs. Paul Stephens, who was unable to attend the party, decorated the room and the Christmas tree. Below are shown three of the guests from the Sunshine school as they received gifts from Santa Claus. Santa, incidentally, looked exactly like Floyd Dent. The children are, left to right, John Komjenovich, Willie Muntan and Geraldine Pesano.

FORGET BRACES AND CRUTCHES

Crippled Children Happy as Rotary Club's Santa Claus Unpacks Gifts.

There were three pine trees growing in the forest—and the green costumes made the children look like pointed trees, with bits of snow on their branches—and two were very tall and haughty and refused shelter to the Red Bird with the broken wing. But the littlest tree with the stubby branches was kind and gave the bird shelter and so it was the littlest tree with the bird in its branches that was chosen by the woodsman for a Christmas tree for his children. And they were taken to a home where there were lights and children and joyousness, while the two haughty trees were left alone on the hillside.

The play was particularly important because the children had written part of it themselves and had made their own costumes and they had a lot of fun in presenting it. They sang songs, too, for their hosts.

And at the end of the program, Santa Claus came in, wearing the traditional suit of red and on his back was a big red pack simply bulging with personal gifts. Santa looked exactly like a Mansfield man—in fact, many said he looked enough like Floyd Dent to be his twin brother.

Every gift had a name on it and when the recipient opened it, there was exactly what he or she had asked for. There were books and dolls and flashlights — everything that 19 small boys and girls could think of.

There was other entertainment, too; there was the S. K. Jorgensen orchestra, and LeMoine Derr's quartet from Senior High school. And after the musical program there were motion pictures intended primarily for the entertainment of small folks—but many of the Rotarians stayed until the very last reel had been run.

G. J. Kochenderfer, president of the club, presided at the dinner, but "Uncle Billy" Mead took over the entertainment. The ballroom had been decorate · by three Rotaryanns—Mrs. W. L. Miller, Mrs. Louis Hartman and Mrs. Paul Stephens, while Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hartman had acted as aide to Santa Claus and had carefully selected each gift.

The annual Christmas party for crippled children was started about 15 years ago, with Rotarians E. K. Bacon and Louis A. Ott in charge. They arranged the parties for about six years and then the work was taken over by the late Charles Schafer and continuel until his death, about four years ago. W. C. Mead has been in charge of the annual parties and the crippled children's year-round program since then.

Numerals went to Margaret Casteldo, Lois Casto, Lois Grove, Peggy Morgan, Mary Star, Louise Cross, Leila Altman, Betty Rizer, Edith Hawkins, 9-A; Virginia Campbell, Evelyn Eichinger, Evelyn Griffith, Mary Betty Hoffman, Ruth LeMunyon, Marceil Pluck, Betty Underwood, Phyllis Schaaf, Marjorie Urich, Mildred Webb, Marjorie Wentz, Ruth Snyder, Doris Scisinger, 9-B, and Jean Bucher, Kathryn Fensch, Virginia Marion, Virginia Webber, Betty Wentz, Annie Zivkoff, Mary Helen Criffith and Josephine Waterhouse, 8-B class. Awards were presented by Miss Snider.

About 250 members of the association attended the dinner. Guests included Principal and Mrs. H. J. Dotson, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Blauser, Glenn G. Rohleder, principal of Hedges Junior high school, and various members of the school faculty.

ATTENDANCE OFF

Miller's Report Shows Slight Drop During November.

Attendance in Mansfield schools showed a slight decline in November while the number of pupils who were neither absent nor tardy dropped from 4,032 in October to 3,657 last month, reports to Supt. W. L. Miller showed today.

Average attendance for all the schools in November was 94.5 per cent as compared with 95.6 per cent in October.

Hedges elementary school had the best attendance mark last month at 97.5 per cent, taking the lead from West Fifth street school which had 98.2 per cent in October.

There were 591 cases of tardiness last month and 25 truancy cases. Seven schools had no truancy, the reports showed. They were Brinkerhoff, Bushnell, Newman, Prospect, West Fifth, Woodland and Western avenue.

$9,600 In Extra Jobless Benefits Go to 763 In Area

A brighter Christmas for 763 jobless in Richland and Morrow counties was assured today with the distribution of $9,600 in unemployment benefit checks to the unemployed of the two-county district.

The checks, averaging about $12, were mailed as the result of a re-determination of the awards due unemployment compensation recipients, H. C. Atkinson, bureau administrator, said. The money went to persons whose original benefit checks were in amounts lower than now authorized.

More than 100,000 persons in Ohio received checks totaling $1,321,000, Atkinson said.

In Ashland county, 173 persons received $2,200, while $5,800 was distributed in 458 checks in Bucyrus, and 361 Norwalk residents got $4,600.

Santa and the TALKING DOLL

by SIGRID ARNE

They whispered and they pointed at her. They laughed.

THE STORY SO FAR: Eric, the son of Lightning, and Leezen, a doll, are headed for the castle of an evil king who makes friends quarrel. If they break his spell the Fairy Queen has said they may go to the Kingdom beyond the sunset.

CHAPTER 15

The Evil King.

ERIC and Leezen set out immediately for the kingdom of the evil spirit that makes men quarrel. The Queen of Fairies accompanied them to the gate, and the white fox trotted behind them.

Just outside the gate the Queen of Fairies said, "Now I must leave you. Remember that this evil king is called 'Chatter.' He will seem full of fun. He will try to please you. But then he will try to make you angry with each other. If he succeeds you will never see each other again. If he doesn't, you may do as you wish."

Eric and Leezen listened. The white fox whined a little. His silky hair stood straight up on his back. The Fairy Queen disappeared and Eric pulled a long bell cord at the gate. He smiled at Leezen to give her courage.

The gate swung open and there stood King Chatter himself. He was a roly-poly man with a broad smile. He was dressed magnificently in red velvet with gold chains about his neck. He took Eric and Leezen by the hands, saying, "How charming. Come in."

SMILES OF WELCOME

So they walked into the castle with the white fox behind hanging his tail between his legs. The King led them into a handsome hall where a dinner was set. There were gold plates and crystal goblets and great bowls filled with shining red tulips.

Nearby three musicians played on harps. There was a group of fine ladies and gentlemen already seated. Everyone was smiling and all nodded welcome.

Through the dinner Eric and Leezen could find nothing that displeased them. After dinner the musicians played waltzes and everyone danced.

Then King Chatter clapped his hands and everyone listened. He chuckled and said, "Now I have a game for us all to play. Beyond that door," and he pointed to a great, double door of carved walnut, "there lies a perplexing corridor. It winds in and out in the castle walls. We shall start through and the first ones back will receive gifts."

"Fine," shouted everyone. So the doors were opened and the group started through the long winding hall ahead. It was lighted with candles. But it was a magic corridor. It was made with mirrors set at such curious angles that people seemed to think they could see around corners. The group walked and walked, some getting ahead, some falling behind. Eric and Leezen were the last in line with the white fox following Eric.

And finally Leezen found herself in a small turn of the corridor alone. She kept looking at her many images in the fine mirrors as she passed but then she stopped in hurt surprise. In one mirror she saw Eric talking and laughing with another man in the company. They whispered and they pointed at her. They laughed. "They're making fun of me," whispered Leezen to herself. She couldn't hear them, but she could see them. "Patience, patience," she whispered to herself. "This is King Chatter's evil."

HORRIBLE FACES

At the same time Eric was having the same experience. He thought he saw Leezen talking about him with another woman in the party. But Eric only grinned and walked on. He remembered the Queen's warning.

Both of them walked through the mirrored corridors for an hour. Then two hours. Each little while they thought they saw each other. Sometimes the images made horrible faces.

Sometimes they seemed to whisper. Once Leezen was so sure it was really Eric ridiculing her that she started to run. "He's hateful! Eric is cruel," said a whisper in the air. "No, no," shouted Leezen to the mirrored walls. "Eric is good—but—but—," and she wept.

She ran weeping, and finally she was back out in the big banquet hall. There sat King Chatter looking sullen. And there stood Eric. Leezen hesitated for a minute, and then she ran to his side and said, "Oh, I'm so glad to see you."

As she said it, King Chatter snored loudly. His servants began putting out the fire, locking doors, clearing the table and pulling down shades.

"Come let's go," said Eric. They ran from the castle and down to the gate.

Tomorrow: A new task is set for Eric and Leezen.

WESTINGHOUSE KEEPS EXHIBIT

Company Says It'll Return to World's Fair Next Year; Elektro Popular.

The exhibit of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company which was viewed by millions of visitors at the World's Fair in New York City last summer, will be continued through 1940, A. W. Robertson, chairman of the Westinghouse board, has announced.

Robertson said at his Pittsburgh office that the company's decision was due to the success of the fair this year, which was visited by more than 26,000,000 people. Of this number 6,500,000 visited the Westinghouse exhibit.

Elektro, the mechanical man which was built in the Mansfield plant by its designer, J. M. Barnett, will be a part of the second year's exhibit. Elektro is the successor to Willie Vocalite, who made his debut at the Chicago fair five years ago and who was shown at the San Francisco fair this year.

Elektro was the second most popular feature of the Westinghouse exhibit at the New York fair, being topped only by the Time Capsule which was sunk in a well where it is to remain for 5,000 years.

The mechanical man will take on some new "tricks" and other human traits during his stay in the Westinghouse laboratory here this winter.

SEARS MANAGER GOES TO FLORIDA

Washburn Leaves Saturday to Take Over Store In Sarasota.

L. J. Washburn, manager of the Sears, Roebuck and company store here for the past five and a half years, will leave Saturday for Sarasota, Fla., where he will take over a new store which is being opened there.

Washburn came to the Mansfield store in June, 1935, from Chicago. His place will be taken here by A. R. Jones, who has been his assistant. Mrs. Washburn and their daughter, Harriet, left Mansfield for Florida two months ago. They have been residing at 395 Park avenue west.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 20, 1939.

Just time enough left to do that final Christmas shopping—if you hurry!

Optimists continue to believe the world is getting better—in spite of all the efforts to prevent it.

It appears that the Finns are admirable in many ways, as Will Rogers once said of them, "At a public dinner they eat for two hours and nobody makes a speech."

Traffic's Most Dangerous Week

WITH Richland county already ahead of its last year's record of traffic fatalities, there is reason for this city and county to join strongly in the nation-wide effort of the National Safety Council to keep this year's total of traffic deaths below the 1938 figures.

Hundreds of messages from governors, mayors, police officials and safety organizations over the country have been pouring into the council's headquarters, pledging enthusiastic support and outlining special educational and enforcement programs for the remaining days of the year.

It is pointed out by the council that this is the zero hour for traffic safety and it is feared that December—normally the most hazardous month, with bad weather, more hours of darkness and the holiday rush—will wipe out the narrow margin between present recorded deaths and last year's total.

Motorists and pedestrians alike must exercise more than ordinary care during these few days before Christmas if additional tragedies are to be avoided in Mansfield and other cities. With thousands of shoppers crowding the business districts, and street intersections congested by pedestrians and automobiles, the need for carefulness is probably greater than at any other time of year.

The habit of some motorists who make right or left turns at intersections without regard to pedestrians who have the right of way in crossing on the red light, and of starting on the amber before the crossing has been cleared by pedestrians, is one that should be more sternly dealt with by enforcement officials. A few arrests for such offenses would tend to reduce these practices very quickly.

In these final shopping days everybody is in a hurry—but the hurry should not be so great as to make peoople forgetful of safety—for there can be no Merry Christmas if accident befalls yourself or a loved one.

Sharing Christmas Pleasures

THERE'S something about Christmas that makes it a day that can't be enjoyed alone. It is very definitely an occasion when members of families make a special effort to be together and when friends find pleasure in making social calls and exchanging gifts.

But, unless attention is given by thoughtful persons, Christmas may be a lonely day for some older folks whose families are scattered, and even for some younger men and women who may be too far away from home to make a holiday visit possible.

Many large and small groups are active, during the holidays, in providing baskets of food, and other essentials, to needy families and in distributing toys to children who might be neglected by Santa Claus. But it is not only the so-called "needy" who merit consideration on Christmas, for real needs cannot be safely measured in terms of food, clothing and shelter.

A dinner invitation to some friend, acquaintance or neighbor, who might otherwise spend the day alone, would express the true spirit of Christmas and would probably add to the day's enjoyment for all concerned. And if, by chance, some little act of kindness and consideration can be done for some less fortunate person or family, as an individual contribution to the happiness of others, the pleasurable thrill associated with unselfish service will become more widespread in the community.

As an example, one Mansfield man and his wife, who would otherwise be alone for their Christmas dinner, have arranged for five boys to have dinner at their home on Christmas—feeling that they will enjoy their own dinner much more as a result.

If, by individual and group action, the Christmas spirit can be spread into every home in Mansfield next Sunday and Monday, this will be an even finer city in which to live.

An Issue of Life and Death

THE GREAT conflict between totalitarian and representative government, Walter Lippman tells an audience of industrialists, is no contest between equally rational or responsible social philosophies.

"This is a deadly conflict," he says, "in which the real issue is an issue of life and death. This is a conflict in which the lives of the political, industrial, intellectual and religious leaders of free peoples and all their constitutions of the west, their religion, their law, their property and their scientific learning, are at stake on the outcome."

The principles involved, he adds, are that every man is potentially a self-governing person, and the law must be made and administered with this idea. And because every man is a person, he may not be used by other men, or by rulers of a state, as if he were an animal or a mere machine.

For illustrations of the depth to which humanity sinks when these noble principles are ignored, Americans only have to look at Stalin's Russia and Hitler's Germany.

Nicaragua's Forward Step

NICARAGUA, which has hitherto imported all its cotton cloth, has just begun operating its first textile mill. It is using its own cotton and machinery imported from Mexico.

Thus a small agricultural country, one of our Central American neighbors, is seen taking a first small step toward industrialization. Cotton textiles have hitherto represented one-fourth of Nicaragua's total imports, chiefly from the United States, Great Britain, Germany and Japan, in that order.

When Nicaragua is able to manufacture most of its own cotton cloth it will stop buying elsewhere, adding its little bit to our own surplus problem. Another country will become self-sufficient, or nearly so, in another important line, and isolation will be given another slight boost.

That is the immediate and gloomy view. The thing may work out differently. Lively industrial development there should make it possible to open new markets for other American goods. Prosperity in any country stimulates its trade with other countries. That, at least, is the theory on which industry and international trade used to be encouraged and supported.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—BRyant 9-7800 must have been a busy number, because the telegram said, "Your telephoned acceptance will be appreciated," and when I got there at least 200 people—reporters, photographers, columnists, fan magazine writers and bar flies—were standing in little clusters of threes and fours, or gathered around tables on which waiters were gently setting down whiskys and sodas.

It was the studio apartment high above Music Hall, and the occasion was "To have cocktails and meet Miss Ilona Massey, great new singing star of 'Balalaika'," a new M-G-M picture.

Miss Massey is slim, and about five-six, and she comes from Budapest, which is a little surprising when you hear her talk, because she has mastered English, not just learned it—and now she meets you on an even rhetorical plane, with only the most imperceptable trace of an accent.

There was a fan-magazine girl with a stodgy face, and a foreign correspondent who came home from the wars to settle his brother's estate, and a news-reel photographer whose cameras have swept Asia from Inner Mongolia to Tibet.

THERE was the whole long pack of writers who cover Broadway from number One downtown to where it ends, way out west somewhere. And there was Jack—Jack Stinnett, whose desk is within comfortable cigarette-borrowing distance of mine — and Miss Massey — and an empty chair into which I dropped.

I sprawled gracefully over my third of the table just in time to hear Ilona Massey say to Jack in her low, musical voice, "I don't know when, or where, but I remember you. I've known you and talked to you somewhere. I remember your eyes."

"I don't believe you," Jack said. "With my squint, you can't see my eyes."

"That's what I remember about them," Miss Massey replied, which is nice going in any league. I know scenario writers who make big money writing dialog for the movies who never come up to the spontaneous simplicity of that scene. Maybe they ought to go to more M-G-M parties. Maybe they ought simply to see more of Ilona.

Ilona? . . . She was just a girl from a little street in Budapest. . . . She was just a seamstress, with just a salary of $8 a month, sewing hems, and taking tucks, and basting . . . seamstresses do baste, don't they? I'm getting a little beyond my depth in this. But anyway she wanted to sing, and she went to Vienna, where all pretty girls who want to sing go. . . . In Vienna she met Felix von Weingartner, manager of the Vienna state opera. That was the night she sang Tosca as an understudy for the star, who had become ill, and Weingartner gave her a contract.

THEREAFTER the ex-seamstress appeared in many performances, and one day across her path drifted the lucky shadow of Benjamin Thau, a scout, a talent hunter, for M-G-M. That meant a lot of talk, and some frightened moments as well as some exciting ones, for America is a long way from Vienna. But she came here, and maybe you caught her brief appearance—she sang just one song—in "Rosalie."

And now it is "Balalaika," and big billing, and New York, and parties to which war correspondents and fan-magazine writers and reporters, and all the easy-going truck of Broadway go after first telephoning their acceptances . . . and then they meet in a studio, high above Mr. Rockefeller's Music Hall. . . .

Eyes Adapt To Moving Pictures.

—By DR. CLENDENING

Does continued watching of a moving picture strain the eyes?

Authorities do not feel that motion pictures are any more harmful to the eyes than reading; perhaps less so. Our eyes are adapted to watching objects in motion and we do so from the time we are born. The quality of the film, the arrangement of the lighting, the mechanism of the motion and the position of the observer all are important. If the screen picture is clear and distinct, and the screen is arranged so there is no glaring reflection, little strain results. Films are retired from service after a reasonable amount of use and it is well that they are because they become spotted and cracked in continued use.

The position of the observer is very important. If he is too close to the screen, the pictures are blurred and confused, and more strain results.

Is the modern breakfast more efficient than the breakfast of our grandfather's time?

If our grandfathers or great-grandfathers returned to earth today, it is quite possible that the breakfast which we would serve them would attract as much attention as any other change that they would find. The Anglo-Saxon settlers of this country brought their breakfast ideas from England. They had beefsteak and onions, ham and eggs, pancakes swimming in syrup, doughnuts and pie, and sometimes pork chops. They had to eat these things because the benefits of modern transportation and refrigeration did not bring them fresh foods. The modern energizer of orange juice, toast and coffee, with perhaps a thin slice of bacon and one egg, is a far more efficient meal and makes for better work in the forenoon.

Does sugar appearing in the urine after a meal have any serious significance?

To such a question as this, the only fair answer is to say that that is one of the earliest symptoms of diabetes. It is real diabetes and not something that can be dismissed. The patient with this symptom often feels that it is of no consequence and blames his doctor for insisting on regarding it seriously and prescribing treatment for it.

Of course, it simply means that the ability of the body to burn sugar is lowered, and when there is any strain put on it, as with additional sugar going into the system with a meal, the sugar that cannot be burned spills over in the urine. The early diabetic metabolizes sugar if he does not get too much of it at a time.

Patients with this symptom are very much encouraged by noting, for instance, that the morning urine, on getting out of bed, is clear and the urine passed before the midday or evening meal is free of sugar, and they regard the postprandial glycosuria as a little peculiarity, but it should be taken seriously and [illegible] at its true value. The way to do that is to have a blood sugar concentration test. Properly done, this leaves no doubt as to whether the incidental sugar is a peculiarity or the real thing.

AGE AND YOUTH TOGETHER

(Edith Shelton—The Women's City Club of San Francisco—Columnist of the Day)

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

CALIFORNIA fall. Ever know it? Nothing like it! Old year, new year—jumbled all together. Old year passing new year pushing up the trail together. Pumpkins, pears and apples piled along the road. Grapes in bursting clusters—garnet, violet, jade. Chinese lilies springing by an old stone well. Pomegranates scarlet on an old white wall. Miles of black earth sprawling, resting in the sun. Sunlight pooling, amber bright, when the day is done.

Everywhere the smell of smoke—blue gauze over gold. Everywhere bright veins of grass, from the first fall rain. . . Everywhere wild gypsy trills—larks are back again.

California fall. Life should be like that—age and youth together. Swelling bud and ripened fruit pushing on together.

"And life can be like that!" laughs young-old Edith Shelton of San Francisco.

"Something to say? I've plenty! And all of it about this grim business we've made of growing old.

"I was raised to believe that 'life was real and life was earnest' with accent on the earnest. For years I took myself and my duties seriously, raising a family, serving my fellow mortals. Then, suddenly, the children were raised and I was 50. And the more I looked around me, the less I liked the view!

"All the other folks of 50 seemed to be either resigned or resentful. But why? No reason, they were simply acting as folks of 50 were supposed to act. Well, I had followed a rut all my life too. But now—I struck! Refused to be either resentful or resigned. Didn't I have what it took for a happy old age: namely, courage and humor? I did! Very well—I decided to get all the fun possible out of life and upset as many applecarts—and I have! And it's been a lark every step of the way!

"My first revolt was against this idea that a mother should 'live her life through her children.' Not for me! My children were adults. I didn't want part of their lives; I wanted a life of my own—interests, hobbies and adventures of my own. And I went after them. There is no space here for details. But I've discovered this. It's all nonsense about 'growing old.' YOU CAN KEEP RIGHT ON GROWING YOUNG IF YOU HAVE THE GUMPTION.

"Nine-tenths of our growing old is plain laziness. People get into a rut and haven't enough spunk to crawl out of it. We can be as excited and enthusiastic at sixty as we were at sixteen, if we will move with life as youth does.

"I've moved! I've forgotten my dignity and laughed myself sick at my old smugness and found new delight at every turn of the road. And when the end comes, I want no fuss. But I do want my loved ones to get together and have one glorious wake and tell all the silly, absurd, gay things I've done.

"It has all been worth while! Tragedy and pain should only mellow us, joy and gladness is all pure velvet. Life can be, and is, glorious for the one who has courage enough to live it fully and taste all of it to the last good, good drop."

EDITH SHELTON

Spring time—autumn time—pushing on together! That's the way to live it—with a laugh and a wink and a toss of your gay heel. And here's a toast to the gallant ledy who DARED TO BE YOUNG IN SPITE OF CALENDARS.

Carols Heard In Central Park

My Christmas shopping's not a task
To dread, nor one I wish to ask
To be relieved, for like a lark
The carols flow from Central park.

In far off lands, hate may be king
While here, goodwill and peace they sing.
I'm grateful, Father, for their song.
One thing, I know that can't be wrong.

My prayer is now, shall always be
For guidance so, thy will we see
And keep alive the quenchless spark—
The song that floods our Central park.

—Sally Scott.

TODAY IN HISTORY

The United States took possession of the Louisiana Territory on Dec. 20, 1803. President Thomas Jefferson bought the land from Napoleon I, Emperor of France, for $15,000,000. The purchase doubled the area of the United States.

Memories

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

MY YOUNG daughter, her grandmother, and I went up the trail that winds along the border of our farm. The youngster skipped on ahead, thoughtless, lightfooted, jubilant. The gray-haired lady and I followed more slowly. I offered her support in the rougher places, and once suggested that we stop and rest upon a fallen log. She was unwilling, but presently we stopped and looked back along the way we had come.

The rustic panorama was like a mighty scroll unrolled between the ridges. Far off wooded hills rimmed long lovely stretches of lowland meadow. Behind us loomed the vast, protecting hill. Our own little low-built valley home was nearly out of sight below the rise.

Grandmother's thick white hair floated in the wind. Her soft brown eyes had a far-off look, and her wrinkled face wore an unconscious smile. Her kind visage showed deep joy in what she looked upon.

"'I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills,'" she quoted softly. "The scenery here reminds me of when I was a girl."

We went on up. Cool fresh green moss grew along an exposed edge of sandy rock. It was delicate and soft as velvet. She stooped and tore away a gleaming portion, roots and all, and sniffed its earthy fragrance. In the center of the deep rich mat we saw leaves of a violet, and concealed beneath the surface, a bud upon a tender white stem. "I'll take this home," she said, "and plant it near the house, among the shrubs."

Some ferns grew just beyond our reach. I climbed, and uprooted two fine specimens to place in her eager hands. She wrapped them in large wet leaves, found near her feet, and laid them along the path to get when we returned.

"Come up here, grandma," called the little girl. "There's a ruined old house and a barn all fallen in. It's sad—but interesting."

Grandmother's face was shadowed for an instant as we looked at the ruins. Then she shared our explorations, like a girl. In the delapidated garden, where faded stalks of camomile, ditney, sage and thyme still struggled for a place, she paused and said, wistfully, "I wish I could get roots of these. They feel like home."

Her eyes were moist. She was thinking, I knew, of loved ones we had never known, of scenes we never saw. She was living the joy of unremembered things we could not share. We stood there, silent, for a long moment—a moment owed to remember when we grow too old to climb the trail. About and above us, between the hills, the voice of Nature rolled, ages old, majestic, lovely . . . here where others had lived and loved before our time, and left only crumbling ruins as a token.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Although the British have developed an effective means of exploding Germany's new magnetic mines, they have not yet been able to prevent the Germans from planting them.

This is the chief worry in British home waters at present. The mines are planted by German airplanes operating at night, and the spots they seek out are relatively shallow estuaries, such as the entrance to the River Thames.

Once these mines are tossed out of an airplane at night, there is nothing to warn British shipping next morning that in the mouth of the Thames or other waterways lurks certain death.

To protect shipping traffic, the British have moored scows off shore at the entrance of the Thames and also the Firth of Forth, and to these scows they have attached balloon barrages—in other words, nets strung between the balloons in order to tangle any airplane which the Nazis might send to throw magnetic mines into the water below.

U. S. Intelligence reports also state that the British are assuming the offensive against the German bases in the North Sea from which these mine-laying airplanes take off.

Most effective remedy the British have developed to blow up these mines is to place two large pieces of iron over the water in order to attract and explode the magnetic mines. However, this takes time, so the British are concentrating on preventing the laying of mines rather than blowing them up after they are laid.

Note—The British also have experimented with an electric ray which they hoped would penetrate beneath the water and touch off the mines. However, this has been a failure. Only one mine so far has been detonated by the ray.

Lothian and McNutt.

ALTHOUGH both Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, and the new British ambassador, Lord Lothian, have been in Washington for several months, they had never met each other until the night of the Gridiron dinner when photographers urged the Democratic dark horse to pose with the ambassador.

"But I've never met him," hesitated McNutt. "Well, don't let that worry you—hey, Mr. Ambassador, this is Paul McNutt, he may be the next president and I think you should know him." Both men laughed heartily at the candor, if not the tact of the introduction, and shook hands amid a barrage of flash bulbs.

Fortification Holdup.

ARMY OFFICERS don't like to talk about it, but more than thirty million dollars of urgent construction work to fortify the Panama Canal has been delayed through the war department bungling.

The work is for the construction of new air bases, new harbor defenses and anti-aircraft guns which were voted in a hurry at the last session of congress. To date—five months later—the contracts for this work have not even been let, and they will not be let until 45 days hence.

The delay was caused by the fact that Secretary of War Woodring planned to let the Panama contracts on a cost plus basis. This he was permitted to do under a special act of congress when it was found that military secrets might be revealed by public bidding.

However other members of the war department, including Assistant Secretary Louis Johnson, were opposed to cost plus contracts and argued that the scandals of the World war would be repeated. They pointed out that when a contractor is permitted to work for the government for a commission based upon the cost of the job, he nearly always runs up the costs, increases his commission, and lets the government pay the extra bill.

Finally, Major General Henry Gibbins, Quartermaster General, submitted a memorandum that no military secrets were involved and that there was no reason why contractors could not bid publicly as they do on any other type of contract. This was in early September. However, Secretary Woodring still favored construction on a cost plus basis, and a total of 180 contractors prepared approximate cost figures.

Meanwhile, Assistant Secretary Johnson refused to have anything to do with the plan. So also did General Gibbens.

Finally the White House heard about it, and categoric orders were issued that the Panama contracts must be awarded only after public bidding. By this time it was December—though General Gibbens had submitted his memo in early September.

So last week, Secretary Woodring issued a statement that bids would be asked for $35,000,000 of Panama Canal defense — to be opened 45 days hence.

Girl From Arkansaw.

AS A caller was leaving the office of State Department Counselor R. Walton Moore the other day, Moore said, with a grin, "Glad to have saw you." And that reminded him of a story:

"Once there was a fellow who was challenged to write a poem which would rhyme the word 'Arkansas.' So this is what he wrote:

"'Here's to the girl from Arkansas,
She can saw more wood than her maw can saw;
She can take a little drink,
And sling a little ink,
And chaw more tobacco than her paw can chaw'."

White House Secretariat.

FOR years and years, ending with 1939, you could have heard a guide telling a bus full of tourists as they drove up West Executive avenue, "On your left, ladies and gentlemen, is the State, War, and Navy building."

Then came change. Navy moved out, followed by War, and guides adjusted their spiel to, "On the left you have the Department of State."

But today, if the guides were accurate, they would deliver this mouthful to the gaping tourists: "On your left you have the offices of the Bureau of Budget, the Central Statistical Board, the Executive Staff of the National Resources Council, the White House Secretariat, and the Department of State."

The state department had hoped to expand comfortably and stretch its legs in offices vacated by the war department. But it was not to be. Today, the swankiest offices in the building, with new parquet floors and gold-burnished door-knobs, are given over to the new gentlemen who have a "passion for anonymity"—the president's secretaries.

There is one suite of offices, however, which remains inviolate. Overlooking the White House grounds, it is regarded as the best in the building. Despite the pressure for space, and the fact that its tenant makes use of it only a few days in the year, this suite will not be touched in any reshuffling.

The tenant is General John J. Pershing.

TOMB UNCOVERED.

MOSCOW —(U P)— An ancient burial site has been discovered in Georgia, near Miskhet, A stone box found in the tomb contained two glass vessels, a silved buckle and ornaments for a belt, several thin golden plates from a burial wreathe and a Roman silver coin dating back to the time of Emperor Augustus.

SETS DISTRICTS IN BOT FLY DRIVE

County Agent Relates Plans for Annual Winter and Spring Campaign.

Six districts had been set up in the county today for the annual winter and spring campaign against bot flies in horses, County Agent George B. Ganvard said.

A veterinarian will treat the horses in each district if farmers give their consent. The campaign will be sponsored jointly by the county agent's department, Richland County Horse Breeders' association and the veterinarians.

The districts and veterinarians assigned to them are:

Plymouth, Cass and Jackson townships, Dr. W. R. Henson of Shelby; Bloominggrove, Sandusky, and south half of Troy and Washington townships, Dr. R. H. Wadsworth of Mansfield; Butler, Sharon, Madison and north half of Troy townships, Dr Ben Henson, Mansfield.

Franklin, Springfield and Monroe townships, Dr. C. C. Wadsworth, Mansfield; Weller, Mifflin and north half of Washington townships; Dr. S. E. Taylor, Mansfield; Perry, Jefferson and Worthington townships, Dr. C. B. Stanley, Bellville.

Treatment consists mainly of giving the infected horse a capsule of carbon bisulfide to destroy the bot larvae in the animal's stomach.

Farmers who desire to participate in the eradication program have been asked to inform County Agent Ganyard who will report to the district veterinarian.

ESCAPES HONOR FARM

LONDON —(AP)— Supt. V. F. Amrine of the London prison farm said today that Jack Raney, alias Jack Rainey, 42, of Trumbull county, had escaped from the Lebanon honor farm. Raney was sentenced in March, 1939, to one to five years for breaking and entering.

HEADS CENTENNIAL

GALLIPOLIS —(AP)— Ed M. Hawes, of Marietta, was chosen last night to direct the Gallipolis centennial celebration next year.

Iron rarely occurs in the free state as an element, being combined with earths and rocks. But so widespread are these ores that iron came into early use by man.

Christmas Truce on Western Front Promised by Nazis

'PEACE' SEEN IN BERLIN IF ALLIES AGREE

Reported Pledge Follows Visit of Papal Nuncio to German Foreign Office.

(By International News Service)

BERLIN — Something in the nature of a "Christmas truce" on the Western front at least was virtually promised by Germany today "if the other side refrains from attack."

As Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler left Berlin, presumably to follow his usual Yuletide custom of dividing the holidays between Munich and Beschtesgaden, authentic quarters clearly indicated that Germany would not embark upon any land offensive over the Christmas season.

In this connection, neutral observers in Berlin attached considerable importance to the recent activities of Monsignor Cesare Orsenigo, the Papal Nuncio.

Whether his visit to the German foreign office today had any connection with the reported decision to ease off prosecution of the war until the end of the year at least could not be ascertained definitely, however.

Three times last week Msgr. Orsenigo called upon Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, presumably to emphasize again the desire of Pope Pius for peaceful settlement of the conflict.

Link Visits to Truce.

This made him at least the busiest diplomat in Berlin. The tenor of his conversations with Von Ribbentrop naturally was shrouded in secrecy but observers naturally linked his visits with the inspired statement indicating a virtual "truce" on the western front unless the British and French armies embark upon wholesale hostilities.

An official commentator discussing the state of affairs with foreign correspondents today took occasion to refer to the present conflict as a "war of specialists." Heavy emphasis was placed upon the recent activities of the German air fleet and of Nazi submarines, which in the German view have achieved much in their appointed task of "harassing" England.

MERCURY DROPS

Snow Follows Winter 'Heat Wave' and Rainbow.

Snow flurries this morning brought a sweeping change in weather from the spring-like showers of yesterday afternoon which were preceded by a winter "heat wave" and followed by a rainbow across the eastern sky.

Temperatures were in the spring class yesterday when Mansfield warmed up under 55 degrees and other cities in the state went as high as 61. A sharp drop to 30 this morning still left the average at 42 degrees, which is 14 degrees higher than the average for this time of year.

Today's forecast is for partly cloudy, slightly colder and snow flurries tonight, and Thursday fair.

COUNTY GETS RELIEF TASK

City Council Switches Needy Aid to Commissioners, Jobs of Dems Probably Saved.

Crum, the other Republican member, was absent.

Dems Held Power.

It would have made no difference, however, if all four Republicans had voted against the bill, since there were five Democrats for it and only a majority vote was needed.

There was no discussion of the bill. It required about five minutes for Council Clerk William J. Beer to give the measure the third reading and for council to pass it. Fred Miller, Fifth ward councilman, sponsored the measure. Mayor Claude M. Hunter, who supported the bill, did not appear until after council adjourned.

To be consistent, Councilmen Shultz and Porch, Republicans, had to support the Democratic-sponsored measure, for they were members of the council committee that requested the county to take back the relief administration after it was handed to the city, March 15, 1938, it was pointed out.

The city will pay the county $550 a month to administer its relief, but no funds will actually change hands. The ordinance provides that the city's payments be withheld from the city allocations of general tax funds collected by the county. The bill does not obligate the county to pay any part of the city's direct relief expenses.

Although county commissioners were eager to get rid of the city's relief administration last year, Mayor Hunter said they had agreed to take it over again.

Commenting on council's action last night, C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of commissioners, said "it makes no particular difference to us whether we handle all or part of the relief administration as long as the county doesn't have to pay out any more money."

Mitchell added that the commissioners "plan no immediate change in the personnel at the relief office, except that we might try to reduce the administration costs some if the relief burden continues to decline.

Load Greater as Christmas Mailing Heads for Record

The Christmas rush continued at a brisk pace at the Mansfield post office today with all indications pointing to a record Christmas business this year.

Letter and card cancellations at the office yesterday totaled 137,7000, an increase of 40,700 over Monday's cancellations which were 97,000.

Sale of postage stamps of the smaller denominations also was heavy, equaling the 140,000 sold Monday, first day of the rush. The sale yesterday was 90,000 one-and-a-half cent stamps, 20,000 two-cent, and 30,000 three-cent stamps.

An increase was also noted yesterday in both incoming and outgoing parcel post business, Postmaster Herman E. Homberger, said. Parcel post business already this year is much heavier than in past years, he added. For the remainder of the week all windows at the post office, with the exception of money orders, will be open every night until 7:30. The windows open daily at 7 a. m.

Finn Relief Fund Jumps $56; Total Climbs to $471.48

With a single gift of $25 from a young couple heading the list of contributors, Mansfield's Finnish Relief Fund jumped $56 today, bringing the total to $471.48.

It was hoped that the Finnish Fund, which is being collected in Mansfield by the News-Journal, would hit the $500 mark by tomorrow. This is the second week of the contributions.

Contributors to today's fund were Mr and Mrs. Carlton Smith R. D. 4; Frank Beverstock, 56 North Mulberry street; Joseph Bern, 73 Sherman avenue; Sherman Au, R. D. 6; H. R. Fiedler, Farmers Savings and Trust company, Mrs Roletta Thornton, 521 West Fourth street; Lewis McFerren Sixth avenue, W. F. Beam, R D 5, Mr and Mrs Glenn Rohleder 383 Ruth avenue, and the Junior Married People's Sunday School class of St. John's church.

Announces Plans to Remodel Station, Construct New Subway, Shelter.

building will be extended at the southeast end, to eliminate a shed standing there at present.

A new entrance, in the center of the city side of the building, will be constructed for arriving passengers. The entrance will be covered with a marquee.

Inside, the ceiling in the main waiting room will be lowered, modernized lighting and seating will be installed and new restroom facilities added. The entire interior will be renovated.

Ticket offices of both the Erie and Pennsylvania lines will be combined in one large room, while, other rooms will be provided for the use of railroad employes.

Walls To Be Cleaned.

The exterior of the building will be cleaned with sand blast, so that the appearance of the newly constructed portion at the end and the older building will be identical.

At the luncheon at which the undertaking was announced were Draffan, who is executive vice president of the Ohio Brass company; L. E. Osborne, Westinghouse superintendent of engineering and manufacturing, and other members of the C. of C. transportation committee which includes, C. K. Smaltz, Ralph Moorhead, James M. Hill, C. A. Hines, Judge C. H. Huston, George W. Stephens, Paul R. Tappan, Frank B. Mahoney, S. Glenn Vinson, C. H. Henkel, and C. L. Van Derau; John G. Routzon, C. of C. secretary; General Superintendent Miller of the railroad, F. R. Rex, eastern division superintendent; and Paul W. Van Camp, publicity representative of the railroad; John W. Graham, general manager of The News-Journal and R. D. Lindsay, the paper's managing editor.

Just as the luncheon began, Miller handed Draffan a large Christmas package. When Draffan unwrapped it, he found the colored drawing of the station improvement, 15 by 30 inches, framed in walnut.

Included was a card from the Pennsylvania railroad wishing all of Mansfield "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

In presenting the $75,000 Christmas gift, Miller said that the railroad appreciated the loyalty of its many friends and had realized for years that its passenger facilities were not in keeping with the dignity of the city.

"However," Miller added, "the recent depression prevented the company from making improvements of any kind. But now with the increased business, and in appreciation of the loyalty and support of the business men of Mansfield, the company has allotted its first available money to Mansfield for the station improvements.

"I feel," Mr. Miller concluded, "that the citizens of Mansfield will be justly proud of this, the new entrance to their beautiful city."

The action of the railroad in making the station improvement comes after five years of active effort on the part of the Chamber of Commerce, through a special committee, to obtain modernization of station facilities.

When Arthur E. Allen, then vice-president of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, was in Mansfield he headed a C. of C. committee which obtained a promise from the railroad that as soon as it had the money it would improve the Mansfield station.

Allen was succeeded as committee chairman by Draffan, and the campaign continued. But, the situation remained unchanged.

About two months ago, L. E. Osborne, Westinghouse executive, attended an Ohio State Chamber of Commerce meeting in Cleveland which was also attended by E. W. Smith, vice-president of the Pennsylvania. The subject of Mansfield improvements came up.

Business Upturn Helps.

In making the announcement of the modernization today, Superintendent Miller pointed out that the recent business upturn had benefitted the railroads and that the Pennsylvania was keeping a promise it had made Mansfield—to undertake the station improvement as soon as it had money available.

Miller said today he had long recognized the need of better station facilities here, and had continuously kept the matter before the company, confident that the improvement would be made as soon as possible.

PRISONER BACK

Mother Returns Wayne County Fugitive to Reformatory.

Arthur Steen, 19, Wayne county, who fled from the Sandusky honor camp last Friday was back in the Ohio state reformatory today—the second to return of his own volition within the past three days.

Steen was returned to the institution by his mother to complete a one to 15-year term on a charge of breaking and entering. Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said. He was sentenced Sept. 26, 1937.

Monday John Horak, Cuyahoga county, who escaped from the Grafton honor camp eight years ago surrendered to Glattke to complete a one to 15-year sentence for burglary and larceny.

was elected to a councilman-at-large post

Both Miller and Kutschall sat in on last night's brief special meeting, called by Mayor Claude M. Hunter for action on a measure to turn the city relief administration back to the county. The bill was passed, seven to one.

James E. Crum, Republican councilman-at-large who will also retire at the end of this year, was absent last night. He was not a candidate for re-election and his place will be taken by Berg, a Democrat, giving Democrats a six-three edge in the new council.

Council last night approved payment of claim for $16.22, submitted by Frank M. McPeek, 60 East First street, who said his household goods had been damaged by water that backed up from a sewer.

On a motion by George Kyle, council deferred action on a proposal to vacate an alley west of South Main street between Wolfe avenue and Raleigh avenue. Kyle said he thought council should give the matter further investigation.

Schools Praised For Quick Repair of 7 Fire Exits

Deputy State Fire Marshal Gayle Owens complimented the Mansfield board of education today for its "prompt compliance" to an order issued 60 days ago calling for the repair of fire exits in seven elementary school buildings.

Owens following an inspection of the city schools this week wrote Fire Marshal Ray Gill that the order had been "fully complied" with and that J. B. Moke, superintendent of the building, and board of education should be complimented for the prompt action.

"I think I am safe in saying that the public schools in Mansfield are in very good condition at this time," Owens told his chief.

He said that "panic bolts" had been installed on exit doors at Newman, Bushnell, Prospect, Carpenter, Brinkerhoff, West Fifth and Bowman schools; that a new and larger alarm had been installed at the Bushnell building, and a new fire escape constructed at the Bowman school building.

MRS. ALICE LEE DIES AT HOME

Resident of Mansfield for 16 Years To Be Buried Friday.

Mrs. Alice Lee, a native of Alabama, died Tuesday afternoon at her home, 317 East Third street, after a lingering illness. She was born in Shelby Grove, Ala., April 4, 1871, but had been a resident of Mansfield for the past 16 years.

Survivors are a sister, Mrs. Emma McLaughlin, of Mansfield, and a brother, Calvin Castleberry, of Youngstown, and a number of nieces and nephews.

The body was removed to the Geiger funeral home where friends may call until time for the services, which will be conducted at Mt. Calvary Baptist church by Rev. A. J. McCrary, Friday at 2 p. m. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

6 TO SHARE IN RICHMAN GIFT

Local Employes to Benefit By $105,000 Bonus Distribution.

A cash Christmas distribution amounting to $105,000 will be made among factory and store employes of the Richman Brothers company throughout the country, officials announced here today.

According to C H. Saylor, manager of the Mansfield store, six regular employes of the local store will benefit from the distribution, the second given by the company this year. Another was made in July.

Each employe will receive an additional week's pay from the company as a Christmas present, Saylor said. In the factory a winter vacation will begin Friday and continue to Jan. 2.

STAGE PARTY

Tappan Employes, Families to Be Entertained Tonight.

Employes of the Tappan Stove company and their families will be guests of the company at a Christmas party at 7:30 p. m. today in the Senior high school auditorium.

A special program of entertainment has been planned for the evening, with Arthur Smith as master of ceremonies. Candy and oranges will be given to all children present, and a number of prizes are to be given away.

The program includes Jack and Mary Alice Berger, tap dancing; Javetta Bookmayer, vocalist; the Melodiers quartet, singing Christmas songs: Pauline Hoff, vocalist; Geraldine Brightbill, accordionist; Eugene Gump, comedy act; Mary Ellen Seeburger, vocalist; Helen Bonin, steel guitar; Fuller Temple, impersonator; Paul and Joe Etzwiller, guitar duet; Betty Dysart, tap dancer, and Marian and Mabel Bishop, accordion and guitar duet.

Arrangements for the party are in charge of Burt Hower, Vern Kyle, Lester Brinning, Emmet McIntire, Henry Miller and Jacob Streitmater.

ent the approximate $45,000 which will accrue from the half mill levy which was voted last year, for the care of patients, could be used most effectively by sending patients to sanitariums out of the county.

County commissioners, however, asked the advisory board to look for a suitable convalescent home, to which convalescent cases may be sent. In the meantime the program of care and treatment will be carried on under the direction of Dr. Lincoln Fisher and the county tuberculosis nurse, Mrs. Margaret Adams.

On the advisory board, which was appointed last May by the commissioners are Dr. Hattery, chairman; Mrs. H. C. Brokaw, Mrs. H. H. Schettler, Mrs. George Mead, Dr. R. C. Rehder, George Mentzer and John Swisher.

porary detention or even internment for the duration of the war might be ordered.

The Columbus foundered outside the American neutrality zone, although the Tuscaloosa was on neutrality patrol when she sighted the ship, ablaze from bow to stern.

In terse wireless messages to his superiors, Capt. Harry A. Badt of the Tuscaloosa reported that the liner was being scuttled and that a British destroyer was nearby, although there was no evidence of any fighting.

The crew already had pulled away from the sinking vessel in 22 lifeboats, and the American cruiser stood by until all the occupants were picked up. The liner's sea valves were open, to hasten her sinking.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla.—(AP)—The captain of the German freighter Arauca, chased into Port Everglades harbor by a British cruiser, indicated today the ship might remain here indefinitely.

"It looks as if we might be here for two or three years," Captain Frederick Stengler laughed when told the German luxury liner Columbus had been scuttled off the Atlantic coast to avoid capture or sinking.

The 4,354-ton Arauca, on its maiden voyage, was intercepted yesterday by the eight-gunned cruiser Orion a few miles northeast of here in view of the ocean front.

Captain Stengler said the Orion fired a warning shot across the Arauca's bow, about two and a half miles from shore, and signalled for the freighter to follow the British cruiser eastward into Bahaman waters.

"Instead of that," he grinned, "I went the other way."

Speeding toward the beach, the Arauca stopped abruptly just short of the Hillsboro reef and turned around. Witnesses said it then moved out near two southbound American passenger ships, and used one of them, the Shawnee, as a shield until it reached the Port Everglades harbor.

NAMES 15 MORE TO CENSUS JOB

Five From Mansfield in New Appointments Listed by Congressman.

Congressman William A. Ashbrook today announced the appointment of 15 additional persons, including five from Mansfield who will direct the 1940 census taking in the 17th congressional district of which Richland county is a part.

Those named were Mrs. Mae Lex, 20 Lexington avenue, appointed to the position of stenographer at the district headquarters office in Mt. Vernon; Bryan D. Styert, 222 Newman street, D. L. C. Buchanan, 307 North Main street, Todd J. Patton, 37 Arlington avenue, and Miss Ardell Gates, 74 Park avenue west, all of whom were named business enumerators.

Others in the district include H. E. Echelberger and Charles W. Garver, Ashland; Tom Wilson, R. D. 2, Howard, and E. H. Lewis, Mt. Vernon; G. F. Robinson, Coshocton, and Mrs. Laura Marlowe, West Lafayette; Harry L. Bailly, Delaware; Mrs. Esther Hammond, Granville; and J. W. Stock and Fred Simross, both of Newark, all enumerators.

Ashbrook said the appointees who will direct the business and industrial census scheduled to begin Jan. 2, will report for work at Mt. Vernon on Dec. 26, for a week of training under Don H. Harper, Mt. Vernon, and Albert W. Strater of Mansfield, named district supervisors two weeks ago.

The naming of nearly 250 other employes, including 243 census enumerators will probably not be made until sometime in March, Ashbrook said.

TELL BILL GOODBYE + + + + + +

By MARIE BLIZARD

(Copyright, 1939.)

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

Society reporters described the scene, using superlatives to encompass banks of dogwood blossoms, cases of champagne, gowns from Paris and a king's ransom in jewels and furs. "The lovely Fabienne Seymour, post-debutante, and sister of the bridegroom who has deserted the social arena for settlement work, was one of the bridesmaids and it was hinted that her engagement to Nicholas Bartlett may shortly be expected," one of the gossip writers informed the public.

The information must have come from Gertrude, for Fabienne, turning in the reception line to greet each newcomer to the reception, found herself face to face with Bill Mallory.

"Came by to see what I'm in for some day," he said, grinning at her.

"So glad you did," she said evenly, with tears in her throat because she couldn't share that "some day" with him. "You haven't met mother. This is Dr. Mallory, mother."

Bill passed down the line and then Nicky was bringing Ellen up But when she got there, Fabienne had fled to her room to throw herself face downward on her bed.

The door opened softly and Ellen came in.

Four big town cars rolled up in quick succession before St Thomas' church and the bridal party hurriedly left while police held curious sidewalk crowds back from the velvet ropes.

Ellen Chapman and Bill Mallory were among the first to follow and stood waiting for the last of the bridal party to enter the waiting motor.

Fabienne, a long white robe over her blue organza gown, passed down the steps on the arm of her Uncle Mark and got into the car.

Ellen said, "Come on, Bill. You can have a long look at her at the house. By the way, did you look at the bride at all?"

"Was it as bad as that?" he asked, giving her a shame-faced sidelong look.

"Obvious, you mean," she answered, getting into the cab that was to take them to the reception at Gertrude de Ligne's apartment.

She stole a worried glance at him. He looked so happy! For a little while during the winter weeks, she had thought that Fabienne was attracted to Bill. And, too, during the time that she was ill, she had been dependent on him. Ellen had deliberately stayed away, giving them time to be alone with each other. But suddenly Fabienne had changed.

Well, she thought, Fabienne had an environment that was not easy to break away from. Reared in the lap of luxury, it was not unlikely that she was afraid to fall in love out of her own circle. Or, again, perhaps it was only the brief story of the patient-physician relationship, pleasant, dependent and over when that dependence was over.

And there was Nicky. Perhaps, after all, Fabienne was in love with Nicky and reluctant to admit it. She had seen Nicky at the wedding—remembering him from the one time she had seen him that first day with Fabienne at the settlement house—and he looked very handsome. Not big and rugged like Bill, but delicately boned, aristocratic and a trifle sad. The kind of man Ellen liked.

Nicky and Fabienne belonged to the same background. She and Bill were outsiders. She'd never let herself fall in love with a man like Nicky. But men never felt the things a girl did and she feared for Bill.

Her thoughts ran a swift, troubled current during the drive down Fifth avenue and across Twenty-second street.

"Does my nose need powdering?" Bill asked humorously at the door, which was immediately opened by a butler.

"No, but I wish I'd hired a costume," Ellen whispered, looking about the crush of handsomely gowned women. She rather wished they hadn't come, but Dick had dropped in to thank her and Bill for what they'd done to Fabienne and been most insistent about them appearing. And now here they were with not a familiar face in sight.

Then she saw Nicky, and Nicky was coming toward them.

"Hello," he said, holding out his hand to her. "I expect you don't know me, but I remember you. I'm Nicky Bartlett, friend of the family. You're Miss Chapman, aren't you? I saw you one day when I drove Fab down to Willoughby house."

Pink brushed Ellen's cheeks because he said he remembered her. And Ellen was very pretty when that pinkness came into her face. She said shyly, "I do remember you, of course."

She turned to introduce Bill.

Bill had turned along with the tide of incoming guests and was talking to Fabienne.

"I must see Fabienne," she said. "I'll get you in the line and then we'll get you some champagne. I want to talk to you."

* * *

Imagine his wanting to talk to her! To plain Ellen Chapman, who wore a dark blue reefer and a simple little quilled Scotch cap, when the rooms were filled with beautifully gowned girls.

Moving toward the line, with Nicky's hand at her elbow, Ellen found that Fabienne was leaving the line. She saw her face for a moment.

"Stay right here. I'll catch one of these boys with trays," Nicky said.

He was lost in the crowd of people and Ellen wandered away. There had been something in Fabienne's crumbling face that she had seen.

'Sutherland for Coach' Boom Launched.

FAIRMONT, W. Va.—(AP)—A "Jock Sutherland for coach at West Virginia university" boom is under way and the former Pitt mentor is happy about the whole thing. Sutherland was principal speaker here last night and told the gathering he was "happy to feel that you are interested in the possibility that I might come to your state university."

IN THE RUHL BOOK

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

POST CARDS will soon start pouring into Mansfield from St. Petersburg, Fla.

Mailers will be Mike Horvath and John Pfahler, Mansfielder members of the central Ohio all-star football team, which plays in the popular resort city against a southern eleven Christmas night.

The cards will probably read something like this: "Having a good time. Wish you were here."

And there should be no question about the boys "having a good time." Of course, there is that football game to attend to, but it will not demand all of their attention. The trip alone should well repay the gridders for the efforts they put in to their play last fall to be acclaimed outstanding members of their teams.

According to the route released to this office, Mike and John will see more of the U. S. A. than they ever knew existed.

Traveling by bus, the Ohio gridsters left the state Tuesday a. m. by way of Covington, Ky., via the first suspension bridge of its kind in the world. They passed through Lexington, which is in the center of the famous horse raising section.

Richmond a famous battle point in the Civil war, was another stopoff for the gridders. Later they hit Berea, site of the oldest mountain school of Kentucky. Corbin was the last city of any size they saw in Kentucky.

Then came LaFollette, Tenn., which is in the midst of some of the most spectacular mountain scenery in the south. Norris Dam was next on the route. Then came Knoxville, home of the University of Tennessee from which the Vols hail. That's where Nick Weber goes to school.

Mike and John and their new teammates spent their first night at Cleveland, Tenn., more than 672 miles from Mansfield.

See Cotton Fields Around Dalton, Ga.

THE BOYS started to see cotton fields around Dalton, Ga., and then they hit Catersville, where there was a lot of Civil war battling. They reached the foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains at Marietta.

They then slipped through Atlanta, Ga., which is a great city even without Clark Gable and Scarlett O'Hara, and then bit the sunshine belt at Macon. The boys knew they were only a few miles from the Florida line when they reached Twin Lakes

Jasper is the first town they reached in Florida. They got a peak at the Swanee river at Lake City, and then passed through Gainesville, where the University of Florida is located.

The Ohio gridders probably got a glimpse of the sponge fishing fleet at Tarpon Springs. Then they passed through Clearwater and Bellaire, and right ahead was the "Sunshine City," St. Petersburg.

St. Pete's the site of Monday night's grid game, and Mike and John are expected to play a lot of football for the Ohioans.

Defending Champs Face Stiff Test

The defending champion Mayflower quintet, which ran roughshod over the First Lutherans in an opening game last week, is expected to encounter a stiffer test tonight when it engages Park Avenue Baptist in the feature Church Class A league at the Y. M. C. A. The Baptists defeated St. John's in their first appearance. The Mayflower and Baptist quints tangle at 7:45 p. m.

St. John's meets Central M. E. at 7 p. m., and First M. E. and First Lutheran tangle at 8:30.

Whippets Fall By 30-25 Score

Vern Hurst Leads Crimson Flashes to Victory on Home Hardwood.

WILLARD—The Whippets of Shelby high, a "dark horse" in the North Central Ohio conference race, suffered a 30 to 25 beating from the Willard high's Crimson Flashes in a non-conference contest here last night.

Willard, in marking up its second straight win, hopped into the lead midway in the first chapter and never relinquished its advantage.

Led by Bob Lehman, Shelby managed to knot the score at 4-all in the initial stanza, but after Vern Hurst shoved the Flashes ahead, 5-4 a minute later, the invaders couldn't overtake them.

Coach Bill Query's athletes came back strong after the intermission, but lacked the scoring punch to change the situation. Shelby outscored the Willard five in the third period.

Mentor Dave Query, twin brother of Bill, saw his Willard quintet take a 5-4 advantage in the opening stanza, a 15 to 7 advantage at the rest period, and hold a 21 to 17 lead as the clubs resumed play in the final quarter.

* * *

Hurst was high-point man for the evening with 17 points, while Lehman paced the Whippets with eight markers.

City Fives Depend on Veterans

All Teams Except Chocolates Boast of Lineups Studded With Experienced Men.

MANY new faces appear in the lineups of City Class A league quintets this season.

However, the veterans in most instances continue to show the way in the weekly games at Mansfield high school.

Al Stickler, John Rees and Bob Burgett are the mainstays of the Yuncker Sports club. Burgett is a comparative newcomer, but he played in the circuit last winter.

* * *

There are few players who have seen more service in the league than Stickler, a former Mansfield high star. Bob Shade, George Hummel and Fritz Vogel of the Westinghouse club are about the only vets who can challenge Stickler in seniority.

The Westinghouse quintet boasts of other old City league favorites in Ray Friday, John Schuster and Howard Poole.

Tom Farrell is the veteran of the Blue Goose team. The Shelley Chocolates is about the only club which does not boast of any veterans.

* * *

Thursday night's games at the high school will pit the Yuncker quint against the Blue Goose Sohioans at 7:30 p. m. and the Westinghouse Electrics against the Shelley Chocolates at 8:30 p. m.

TOUGH HOCKEY HOMBRES FACE BARONS TONIGHT

CLEVELAND — (NS) — Two tough hockey hombres will ride herd on the Cleveland Barons in their quest for second place in the Int-Am league's western division tonight when the Springfield Indians whoop into town with a rugged gang of puck chasers.

One is Eddie Shore, part owner of the Indians and coach of the team, who will direct play from the bench, and the other is "Bummer" Doran, a forward with plenty of zip in his attack and a chip on his shoulder.

Grohol's 646 Tops Scoring

Collects Games of 229, 194, 223 to Set Pace in Tire League at Meder Alleys.

PETE GROHOL of the Mill Room team cracked the uprights for a 646 series to establish the scoring pace at the Meder Recreation alleys last night.

Bowling in the Mansfield Tire league, Grohol added scores of 229, 194 and 223 as he led his team to a pair of wins over the Air Bags. Grohol's score was the only 600 rolled in the league, but Cecil Burdette of the Service store missed the figures by only one pin.

The Service store was high in the team scoring with a 2558 total, which produced two wins over Main Office No. 2.

Sophia Meder and Bill Hipp, with respective totals of 559 and 581, led the individual scoring in the Mixed Doubles league. Margaret Baker came through with a 504.

* * *

Cousins of the Globe Steel held the spotlight in the Transportation league with a 615 series, which he climaxed with a 233.

Japanese Matman to Feature 'Arm Strangle' at Armory

KIMON KUDO, wiry little Japanese matman, who opposes Davey Reynolds in the co-feature of tomorrow night's mat card at the Armory, doesn't speak a lot of English. He knows enough words, however, to inform anyone who cares to hear it, that Reynolds will not be able to break his famed "arm-strangle."

Kudo's success in the light-heavyweight division can be attributed to the "arm-strangle," a hold which he developed himself. It combines basic jiu-jitsu with the familiar American wrist-lock, but its paralyzing effect makes it a far more dangerous weapon. Kudo believes that it will also prove the downfall of Reynolds.

Reynolds and Kudo are scheduled for two falls, with a 90-minute time limit. Their bout will share top honors with the world feminine mat championship tangle between Mildred Burke of Kansas City, the titleholder, and Princess Rose White Cloud of Kansas, the challenger.

Gus Johnson, Minneapolis Swede, will test the Masked Marvel in the opener of the card.

GUESTS AT MAT SHOW

Coach Paul Snyder and members of the Mansfield high school wrestling team will be guests of Matchmaker Tim Nolan at Thursday night's wrestling show at the Armory.

FINANCIAL AID ASSURED FORMER OLYMPIC QUEEN

HOLLYWOOD —(U.P.)— Georgia Coleman, former Olympic diving champion, was assured of financial aid today for an operation to correct a liver ailment. A donor, who asked to remain anonymous, promised to meet all hospital expenses until after the operation is performed, W. W. Skelton, friend of the Coleman family, said.

Inmates Annex Overtime Game

The Ohio State Reformatory cagers had to go into an overtime period last night to edge the Akron Ukrain A. C. club, 50 to 44, in a tussle at the reformatory. Trailing by a 34 to 31 count going into the last period, the inmates outscored their rivals, 11-8, to send the contest into the extra session.

The inmates gained a 10-7 advantage in the opening quarter, but were trailing, 23 to 19, at the intermission. Doran annexed individual honors with 18 points, while Scinchock paced the visitors with 14 markers.

Feller Ponders Hollywood Offers

DES MOINES, Ia. — (AP) — "I know I can act," Bobby Feller mused today as he pondered a Hollywood offer to make him a "celluloid cowboy." Cleveland's 21-year-old ace pitcher received a bid from Republic Pictures to take prominent parts in a series of six westerns.

Feller talked over the proposition with friends at his Van Meter home and explained he would do nothing that might decrease his mound efficiency or detract from his baseball popularity.

Leaders Meet In Top Battle

Rex-Augustine Game to Decide Friendly House Lead.

One thing is certain when the third week of play in the Senior league is completed at the Friendly House Thursday night. The tie for first place will be broken.

The Rex Billiards defending champions and Augustine's Canfields, who are tied for first place, tangle in the feature game on the league card this week.

The winner will automatically gain undisputed ownership of the top berth. Neither team has been beaten this season.

In the other games, the Moose lodge will meet Daley's Cafe at 6:45 p. m., and the Raemelton Farm and Isaly Dairy entries collide in the middle tilt.
